

Gibson, proposed energy czar, has $1 million link to oil industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration is taking a second look at its nomination of Andrew E. Gibson to be federal energy administrator after disclosure that Gibson has a lucrative agreement with an oil transport company.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Thursday that Gibson's nomination will not be sent to the Senate for confirmation until the FBI completes its background checks on him.

Nessen's disclosure came after The New York Times reported that Gibson received a $1 million separation agreement with Interstate Oil Transport Co. of Philadelphia.

The Times on Thursday said that the agreement assures Gibson of about $100,000 annually from the company for 10 years. Gibson resigned as president of Interstate in May after 16 months with the company.

Later, in an interview with the Times published Friday,

Gibson said he would receive $88,000 a year under the 10-year contract. Gibson also said he was surprised when President Ford announced he was his choice for the energy job.

Gibson said he had expected to be nominated for deputy director of the International Labor Organization in Geneva, the Times reported.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., called on Ford to withdraw the nomination and said the Senate should reject it if he does not.

"Gibson has a million-dollar ring through his nose with the oil industry holding the chain at the other end," McGovern said.

"There can be only one reason for this appointment — and that is a further raid of the American consumer by big oil."

The usual background check on Gibson was not conducted before Ford nominated him last month to succeed John C. Sawhill "because of the urgency" of the appointment, Nessen told reporters.

"Before the nomination is sent to the Senate, these checks will be completed," Nessen said.

Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen said Ford was not aware of Gibson's separation agreement with Interstate.

Injured in head-on crash

One person was injured early today in a car-dump truck collision on Ill. 2 near Plock Road and the entrance to Moore's Mobile Home Park. Injured and taken to Community General Hospital, Sterling, by Dixon Rural Fire Ambulance was Ryland B. Smith, 47, Rock Falls. Smith was admitted to the hospital, where he is reported in fair condition with head and leg injuries. The two vehicles collided after the westbound dump truck driven by Clarence E. Hartman, 30, Rock Falls, came over a hill and attempted to avoid several other vehicles in his lane, which were waiting to turn left into Moore's Mobile Home Park. The truck crossed into the eastbound lane where it struck the Smith car, pictured above, head-on. The truck then rolled down an embankment and onto its side, lower photo. Hartman was not injured in the collision. Smith's 1973 Ford and the 1967 Dodge truck were demolished. Lee County Sheriff's Deputies ticketed Hartman for failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and driving on the wrong side of the road. (Telegraph Photos)

Illinois Senate votes to restore aid cuts

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Senate voted today to restore $20 million to a public aid bill reduced by Gov. Daniel Walker.

In a series of votes, the Senate approved motions to override Walker's reduction veto, which cut a 10 per cent welfare increase approved by the general assembly to 5 per cent.

The measure now goes to the House.

The added funds would go to welfare recipients in three categories: Aid to the aged, blind and disabled; aid to families with dependent children; and general assistance.

A majority vote of each house is needed to restore an appropriation reduced by the governor.

The House and Senate were scheduled to meet today and then break until Nov. 20, the first of three days set for further consideration of Walker vetoes.

Walker trimmed $353 million in appropriations passed by the legislature.

Override motions were filed in the House by sponsors of bills containing a $100 a month pay increase for some state employees and an 8 per cent raise for employees at the University of Illinois. Walker trimmed the $100 pay boost to $50 and cut the 8 per cent hike to 5 per cent.

The opening day of the session was marked by ceremonies but little significant action.

The Senate met briefly and then recessed for ceremonies rededicating the House chambers. Finishing touches were completed during the summer on a refurbishing job that began in July 1973.

Several state officials, including Walker, were present.

It was a jubilant return to Springfield for Democratic lawmakers, fresh from their party's sweep of Tuesday's election, which gave them a majority and the leadership in the 79th General Assembly that meets in January.

Lawmakers already have begun intra-party jockeying for leadership positions.

The most interesting fight is likely to be in the House where a speaker's race may be shaping up between Rep. Clyde L. Choate, D-Anna, currently the minority leader, and Rep. Gerald W. Shea, D-Riverside, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's top spokesman.

The defeat of House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, opens the way for a lively fight among Republicans for the minority leader's position.

In the Senate, it is likely that President William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, and the minority leader, Sen. Cecil A. Partee, D-Chicago, will switch jobs with little flurry.

Conviction of Liddy upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia has upheld the conviction of G. Gordon Liddy for conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping in the original Watergate break-in.

The Appeals Court decision today marked the first test of the original Watergate convictions.

A unanimous seven-judge appeals court generally praised U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's handling of the trial which began Jan. 8, 1973.

"Judge Sirica's palpable search for truth in such a trial was not only permissible, it was in the highest tradition of his office as a federal judge," the appeals court said.

Accused of shooting at canoeists

OREGON — A 59-year-old man accused of firing a gun at two youths on a canoe trip was arrested Thursday by Ogle County Sheriff's Police.

Alvin J. Rhodenbaugh, 59, Oregon, was charged with reckless conduct in connection with the shooting.

Authorities said Rhodenbaugh fired a bullet toward a canoe carrying Michael Gecan and Paul Holland, both of Oregon, missing the craft by about five feet. The incident occurred Oct. 28 near Grand Detour.

Rhodenbaugh was released on bond.

facts to be decided by you.

"As a matter of law, the defendants must be acquitted of the offenses with which they are charged," Battisti went on. "I found no intention on the part of any defendant to deprive anyone of his civil rights."

The eight were charged with wilfully assaulting and intimidating the victims of the May 4, 1970, flareup in which four students were killed and nine others were wounded. The eight also were charged with depriving the victims and others of the rights to protection against loss of freedom without due legal process.

Five also were charged with aiding and encouraging each other in their actions.

The shootings capped a four-day series of demonstrations protesting U.S. military involvement in Cambodia. The guardsmen were ordered to the campus May 2, when a campus building was burned during a nighttime demonstration.

The eight were indicted by a federal grand jury last March. Trial began Oct. 21.

The last prosecution witness was heard Thursday.

The government's chief attorney, Robert A. Murphy, said: "I'm not particularly surprised" by the decision.

Asked whether further action was planned against the ex-guardsmen, Murphy replied, "As far as I'm concerned, it's all over."

Testimony from photographers, the wounded students and others said a crowd of about 2,000 demonstrators gathered in the Kent State Commons that springtime noon as the guardsmen moved into position on Blanket Hill, at one end of the Commons. An officer in a jeep ordered the crowd to disperse but was ignored.

The guardsmen moved back down the hill and around its base to a football practice field where they were cornered between fences by the chanting and yelling crowd of students which followed, witnesses said. The demonstrators were throwing rocks and other objects, and some of them made obscene gestures, witnesses said. Some of the guardsmen were hit, testimony showed.

After firing tear gas into the crowd, some members of which threw canisters back at the troops, the guardsmen again moved up Blanket Hill toward the Commons, where the bulk of the crowd remained, witnesses said.

At the crest of the hill, some of the guardsmen turned, leveled their rifles and began firing, the testimony showed. The 13-second burst of gunfire was described as beginning with one or two shots which were followed by a barrage. Seven of the eight defendants said later they aimed at someone. One said he ordered troops with him to fire a single shot into the air but that he issued the order after hearing others shouting.

None of the other defendants heard an order to fire, they said.

Some of the persons killed and wounded were observers or were passing through the area on business other than the anti-war rally, testimony showed.

Sirica will appoint three-doctor team to study Nixon ability to testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica said today he will appoint a team of three doctors to examine Richard M. Nixon and recommend whether the former president will be healthy enough to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial.

The judge said he hoped to choose the panel, including a heart specialist and an internal medicine specialist, by next week.

Sirica acted on a formal motion from lawyers for defendant John D. Ehrlichman, who have subpoenaed Nixon.

One of the Ehrlichman lawyers, William Frates, said Sirica already has a list of "really great doctors who have all agreed to do this."

On Thursday, Nixon's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller Jr., reported to Sirica that Nixon would be unable to do anything as strenuous as answer questions in a criminal trial for at least two to three months.

Asked by Sirica to comment on the plan for an independent medical inquiry into Nixon's health, Associate Special Prosecutor James F. Neal said that while he would not resist, the prosecution does not require the former president's testimony.

"We don't even concede that Mr. Nixon is a necessary witness for any of the defendants," Neal said.

At one point, it appeared that Nixon would be required to authenticate 26 White House tapes the prosecution plans to play for the jury starting next week. At that time, it was the prosecutors who first recommended that Sirica conduct his own inquiry into Nixon's fitness to testify.

Sirica said Thursday he may allow Nixon to be cross-examined at his San Clemente, Calif., estate after the former president is well enough to answer questions about the cover-up. A videotape of his testimony would be played for the jury.

Sirica said then he believes he could permit videotaped testimony by Nixon without creating a circus atmosphere. It's possible that images of Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, another defendant, will be flashed on a screen at the courtroom sometime during the trial.

Lawyers familiar with the practice say the use of videotaped testimony is becoming common in courts in a number of states, especially California.

The only testimony Thursday was given by former White House lobbyist Powell Moore.

Watergate prosecutors, meanwhile, are planning to play a small portion of Haldeman's videotaped testimony before the Senate Watergate committee in the summer of 1973.

The former White House chief of staff is accused in one of the counts of the indictment against him of lying in sworn testimony before the Senate, but there are conflicts in the official transcription of his words as published by the committee.

The prosecutors, side-stepping technical conflicts over the printed word, are planning on using videotape, a procedure Sirica has indicated he will probably allow.

As expected Thursday, Sirica dismissed objections from defense lawyers to the admission of 26 White House tapes that prosecutors plan to play for the jury beginning Monday.

Although none of the participants in the conversations on the 26 tapes are to testify, the judge ruled that the prosecutors had done enough to prove that the tapes are accurate recordings of actual meetings Nixon had with his aides.

Associate prosecutor James F. Neal has described the 26 tapes as being "what this case is all about."

The first of them to be played Monday records a June 23, 1972, meeting at which Nixon approves a plan to use the Central Intelligence Agency to thwart the initial FBI investigation into the break-in.

Neal said Thursday that the live testimony of former CIA Director Vernon Walters and former acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III will be used to support the evidence in the tapes.

In his testimony, Moore described attempts to get the Watergate burglars out of jail on the day of the break-in, June 17, 1972.

Morgan pleads guilty to fraud in Nixon income tax scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward L. Morgan, who helped arrange for Richard M. Nixon to take a more than $500,000 tax deduction for the gift of his pre-presidential papers, pleaded guilty today to conspiring to violate the tax laws.

Morgan, 36, of Los Angeles, pleaded to a charge filed by the special Watergate prosecutor's office.

The criminal information alleged that Morgan and unnamed co-conspirators concealed "the true facts and circumstances regarding the custody, control and dominion of the pre-presidential papers of Richard M. Nixon."

The prosecutors charged that Morgan backdated a deed to the papers to read March 27, 1969.

The prosecutors noted that tax laws were changed late in 1969 to vastly reduce the amount allowed as a tax deduction for a charitable contribution of personal papers.

The prosecutors said that Morgan, who was a deputy counsel to then-President Nixon, "well knew" during 1969 that the Nixon papers while in government storage remained Nixon's property.

The joint tax return of Nixon and his wife for 1969 was filed April 10, 1970, and stated that he had given the government "personal papers, manuscripts and other materials," valued at $576,000.

Nixon claimed a deduction of $95,298.45 that year and claimed that the balance of $480,701.55 would be carried over to be used as deductions on future tax returns.

The deductions for the gift were reviewed earlier this year and disallowed by the IRS.

Both the IRS and the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation examined the Nixon returns and concluded the deduction should be disallowed. Neither the IRS nor the congressional committee made any allegations of tax fraud.

The maximum penalty for the conspiracy charge is five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. deferred sentencing until receipt of a pre-sentence report and released Morgan on personal recognizance.

In addition to the criminal information, the prosecutors filed with the judge a letter from special prosecutor Henry S. Ruth to Richard C. Van Dusen, Morgan's attorney, which set out the defendant's agreement to cooperate completely with the government's investigation.

The prosecutors also promised Morgan to point out to the court at time of sentencing that the maximum penalty for violations of the tax code are three years in prison and $5,000 fine, less than the maximum for the conspiracy charge to which Morgan pleaded.

BIRDWOMAN OF SAN FRANCISCO arrives at the same intersection, same time, every day with a large sack of grain in the back seat of her car. The mysterious bird fancier who has never identified herself when asked by observers, tosses the feed from her window to a waiting flock of hungry geese and ducks who show up daily on schedule. After their meal, the fowl return to a nearby pond.

Inflation rate likely to average 7 pct.

CHICAGO (AP) — The rate of inflation the next six years probably will average about 7 per cent but could go as high as 12.7 per cent in any one year, a research study cosponsored by the University of Chicago reported today.

The study projected inflation and the rates of return on stocks and securities through the year 2,000. It was based on historical data dating to 1926 and a commonly used projection of interest rates known as the bond yield curve.

The 1½-year project primarily gives the odds on what rate of return investors can expect over the long range from stocks, long-term U.S. bonds, and Treasury bills.

The study was written by Roger G. Ibbotson, professor of finance at the University of Chicago's School of Business.

Soviets to disrupt Sino-Nippon parley

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Premier Kakuei Tanaka has privately warned the White House about President Ford's four days in Japan that begin Nov. 18. They leave a splinter of ice in his heart.

Since the Dec. 10, 1972, elections to the Parliament's lower house the Communist party has become the second largest opposition party. It does not need a majority in the Parliament. It has achieved a blocking position there. And it skillfully pursues its parliamentary tactics for the purpose of harassing and nullifying Tanaka's legislative programs and bringing down the already shaky Tanaka government.

The chairman of the Red party is wily, iron-fisted Sanzo Nosaka, a straight Soviet stooge. When the Kremlin cries "Frog," he jumps.

Nosaka is a man with narrow, shifty little eyes and a manner that betrays his hostile skepticism—one of the most despicable people you could ever wish to avoid.

He's like a character out of Kafka, living a world of schemes and horrors—an operator—and was conspicuously honored by No. 1 Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at the International Communist Party Congress in Moscow on March 30, 1971.

Premier Tanaka privately disclosed to the White House that Japan is increasingly the target of Kremlin undercover antagonism—manipulated through the Japanese Communist party—ever since the premier's trip to Peking and his attempts toward better relations between Japan and Red China.

Tanaka emphasized that the Kremlin worries are concentrated on any rapprochement between Japan and Red China. Russia's Far East hopes and plans would suffer seriously, he said, by a Sino-Japanese rapprochement and the Kremlin has made this fatefully evident to him.

The chief of the Public Security Investigation Agency, similar to our FBI, is Kyosuke Hirotsu. He notified Tanaka that the Reds have more heavily than ever infiltrated the Japanese trade unions, faculties at the universities of Tokyo, Osaka, Kobe, etc., other intellectual groups, student bodies, the key public utilities and basic industries and all branches of the communications media—the Japanese newspapers, magazines, radio and television.

The Japanese law provides that a list of subversive organizations and individuals can be watched by the Hirotsu organization. Tanaka stated that Nosaka, emboldened by his Red party's progress, demanded that Hirotsu remove his name from the list.

Hirotsu refused. Instead, he reported to Tanaka that Japan's Communist party and its fellow-travelers will now expand an internal destruction program in Japan. At the same time they will further step up their immense anti-American movement coincident with President Ford's Nov. 18 visit.

The Communists portray themselves as against violence and for law and order. Apparently this won them votes from a Japanese middle class totally fed up with student and other eruptions. But the premier notified the White House that Moscow is brain-trusting the tremendous Zengakuren student organization and vie other militant groups.

The Red leaders are driven by a demon; cold and implacable. Considering only campus disorders spark-plugged by the Zengakuren, Tanaka stated that student arrests are now running at a rate of 14,000 a year and that obviously the intent is "to collapse the Japanese educational system."

The affiliated Red Army is called the Rengo Sekigun. It is one of Nosaka's tools and, by swift strides, takes Japan back to the dark ages.

The Rengo Sekigun assassinated 27 people in Tel Aviv's Lod airport. Its anarchists hijacked a passenger plane from Tokyo to North Korea. It has tortured and killed any number of its own dissidents in Japan. It has terrorized Western Europe to regain its own arrested members. It is dedicated to nihilism and violence.

Tanaka pointed out to the White House that his own Liberal Democratic party lives in a country of compromise and consensus and that "the Japanese people insist that we not impose what they call 'a tyranny of the majority'."

But the Red Star is over Japan, our most consequential ally in the Far East. And Tanaka and Hirotsu alike can only try—to protect President Ford against the law of the bullet and the horror of an executioner.

Education takes a step back

By DON OAKLEY

A funny thing is happening on the way to the gradeless, wall-less and sometimes disciplineless "alternative" school.

Calling it "an ironic and unforeseen development in public education," the Washington-based Council for Basic Education reports that there is a strong and spreading movement to include among alternatives the kind of schools that the alternative approach repudiates.

In other words, the old-fashioned academic school has suddenly become a novel experiment.

In towns and cities where the open classroom concept or some other variation of neo-progressivism has been introduced, the advocates of strong academic schools are arguing before school boards that if experiments in free and unstructured programs are permitted, then experiments in the traditional academic approach should be permitted also.

And in many places, says the council, they are winning the argument.

An example is the Myers Park Traditional Elementary School which opened this fall in Charlotte, N.C., with a full enrollment of 500 pupils and with the proper court-approved racial mixture. Over 1,000 applications had been received from parents, black and white, who liked the school's announced emphasis on "back to basics" and its philosophy that teachers know better than grade school students what they need to learn.

Among the features of the program at the school:

—The primary concern is the acquiring of basic academic skills, with the school striving to build a positive self-image in each student through academic achievement.

—The curriculum follows a definite progression, building on skills and abilities acquired at each level. Subjects include reading, penmanship (!), spelling, history, English, physical education, art, music and band and orchestra.

—Letter grades will be given in all subjects and report cards will be issued six times a year.

—The discipline policy assumes that the teacher has the authority in the classroom and the support of the principal. Pupils who do not meet behavior standards may, after conferences with parents, be asked to withdraw.

In talks with parents, says principal Lewis Walker, he has discovered that what they want most of all is for their children to master the basic skills. "It seems that many people of both races," he says, "are ready for the schools to head back on a middle road in education."

It is ironic, comments the Council for Basic Education, that attempts to carry out the historic educational function of schools should now be considered "revolutionary."

Uncharitable effects of inflation

Inflation is having some curious effects besides those not-so-curious effects we all know about.

For example, Americans are not donating as much old clothing, furniture and whatnot to charities as they used to. They're selling it instead, at garage sales and flea markets.

Goodwill Industries reports that its familiar collection boxes are emptier these days. Even worse, many of them are being pilfered. The Salvation Army also reports a decline in donations.

"Garage sales used to be held when people were house-cleaning or moving," says Claude Sheridan of Detroit's Goodwill Industries, as quoted by the Christian Science Monitor. "Now, they're getting to be big business."

To try to counter this trend, organizations which depend upon voluntary contributions are stressing the tax-deductible advantages, says the Monitor.

"If people knew that a tax break from a contribution may be more than the profits at a sale, perhaps they would think twice about holding the sale," suggests Matthew Warren, national public relations director for Goodwill.

Inflation is not only forcing up the cost of living but the cost of dying as well.

According to Francis E. Vanderbur, president of a mortuary company in Denver, the business is being hit by the rising cost of personnel, caskets, urns, burial vaults and even gasoline used in hearses. A funeral that cost $695 a few years ago is now $1,200.

The best way people can beat inflation at the funeral home, says Vanderbur, is to buy as much as possible in advance.

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS—Mayor James Ellmaker, Sterling, got off the track of talking about local government and his home town Monday and at one or more times sounded like a federal politician.

He was one of three mayors who addressed the Dixon Rotary Club.

In the midst of offering comment, "If our system is to survive we must have more elected officials who are not interested in their own futures but in solving problems of government," the mayor took off on an observation about the oil crisis in general and drilling rights off-shore of the United States.

Pointing out the oil crisis should have taught us we must free ourselves from dependence on the Arabs, he brought up the subject of the proposal for oil drilling off-shore of the Continental United States and declared if, as some have suggested, we permit this to go to some country in open bidding, the Arabs might be taking oil from off our own shores and then selling it back to us.

Ellmaker noted the Organization of Oil Producing Exporting Nations (OPEC) now sets the worldwide price of oil and has been one of the causes of our out-of-control inflation.

"Now, our own federal officials may be foolish enough to let OPEC nations take oil from just beyond our ocean jurisdiction limits," he commented.

Sticking to foreign policy for the moment, Ellmaker opined "I didn't use to think so, but Fulbright (Sen. William, chairman, Senate Foreign Relations Committee) was right about Vietnam and the Middle East."

The OPEC nations' jumping up the price of oil is related to the fantastic increase in the price of raw sugar.

"Oil profits skyrocketed and affected so many other costs, and now sugar interests can market sugar for whatever price they chose."

The mayor noted the recently ordered a truck load of sugar for his candy making business and between the time he had called in the order and it was loaded on a vehicle, the company called back to inform him of a price increase.

"This affects the cost of me doing business and, like many of you, I wonder when it will end."

He vehemently suggested, "We need to demand more from elected officials."

Ellmaker charged "we are inundated with greed and some retailers are taking advantage of inflated inventories to boost their profits."

"They have used the inflation cycle to boost profits," charged Ellmaker.

Commenting as an economist, the Sterling mayor, "The free enterprise system works best when it is not overmanipulated."

"When it reaches this point vested interest groups enter and it does not react as it should."

The mayor suggested this is why controls of economic factors never work very well.

The decision what to rigidly control and what to be lenient on is based on political reasons rather than economic principles.

Mayor Ellmaker then returned to Sterling to discuss some problems he has encountered as being chief executive of that city.

"In my term of mayor so far, I have had to replace four of five department heads and I can tell you this is no pleasant task."

"Sterling has become the training ground for city department heads."

"We lost our fire chief to Elmhurst, where he has achieved the reputation of being one of the best in the state."

"More recently we lost our police chief to Wheaton. I am just glad we had James McKenna for 15 months."

"I can tell you changing that level of employees so often poses problems some mayors never encounter."

On the other hand, "At the department head level, the longer people stay around the more they tend to become institutionalized," philosophically reasoned Ellmaker.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

The White Pines Bird Club will sponsor an illustrated lecture, "Land the Glaciers Forgot," by Howard L. Orians, Madison, Wis., representative of Audubon Screen Tours, at 8 p.m. Thursday in Loveland Community House. Tickets for the public program will be available at Loveland House prior to the performance.

The Amboy District Board of Education Monday night voted to employ an architectural firm for a school building survey, authorized purchase of equipment and paid current bills. The meeting was held at the high school office.

The acting mayor of the Dixon City Council today announced the awarding of a new police patrol car contract to the Bollman Motor Sales, 1256 N. Galena Ave.

25 YEARS AGO

The City Council last night voted to tap a public benefit fund for $2,700 so it could continue the job of covering garbage in the West End dump. Lacking funds with which to continue the operation, the council approved a resolution providing public benefit funds for the rental of a tractor and a tractor shovel.

If in Lee County any bridge is washed out next week the road over it will be closed, according to the County Superintendent of Highways. The county board of supervisors yesterday voted the bridge fund only enough to cover the two petitions now on file for bridge work.

The Dixon Woman's Club will meet Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. at the Loveland Community House. The program will be devoted to information concerning The Haven which will be the special project for the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs for the next year.

100 YEARS AGO
"The Preacher" will be the subject of the evening lecture in the Universalist Church net Sunday.

Tomorrow is the 90th birthday of Father Dixon. We are pleased to state that his health is as good now as it has been for years, and we are all in hopes to celebrate his centennial.

Rev. Warne to lead crusade

The Rev. Edmund R. Warne will lead the "Caring With Christ Crusade," at First United Methodist Church beginning this week.

The Rev. Warne is from the staff of the Board of Global Ministries and has conducted Crusades in most of the 50 states. He is a graduate of Depauw University and Boston University School of Theology. He has done extensive graduate work at the University of Chicago. He has been pastor in Indiana, Massachusetts, and California and a professor at Evansville College.

A prayer vigil beginning at 5 p.m. today in the Chapel and continuing for 24 hours will launch the Crusade.

The Rev. Warne will meet the Executive Committee at 7:30 p.m. in the church parlor. He will preach at both services Sunday on the subject "God And You." Sammie and Betty Morris are in charge of the Spiritual Life Emphasis for the Crusade and Ivan and Madge

REV. EDMUND R. WARNE

Wallace are supervising the prayer vigil.

On Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. the Rev. Mr. Warne will meet with the leaders selected to arrange visitors for the Crusade. After an instruction period each leader will enlist visitors to assist with the renewal program of the Crusade.

Northwest conference holds annual convention

The Northwest Conference of the Illinois District of The American Lutheran Church recently held its annual convention at St. John's Lutheran Church in Mendota.

The meeting was opened with a welcome by David Jordal and prayer by the Rev. Kenneth Duden of St. John's Lutheran Church. Dr. Elmer A. Nelson, bishop of the Illinois District, spoke on behalf of the district.

Guest speakers for the event were the Rev. John R. Houck, director of the Division for Service and Mission in America of the ALC from Minneapolis, Minn., and the Rev. Elwyn Goodsell, director for the Illinois District Inter Mission Appeal from Evansville, Ind.

Reports were heard from the Seventh General Convention of The ALC held in Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9-15, as given by convention delegates. A report on Early Communion was given by the Rev. Albert Heidmann, also of St. John's Lutheran Church in Mendota.

The delegates at the convention voted to give financial assistance and support in Christian concern to a Rockford area congregation, Living Christ Lutheran Church of Loves Park.

Re-elected unanimously was the Rev. Joel O. Rustad, Tampico, president, and elected as secretary was Mrs. Margaret Sorenson, Rockford. Reports were given by the chairmen of the conference committees.

During the evening meal, served by the ladies of the Mendota congregation, the Singing Mothers of St. John's Church sang a number of inspirational songs. The closing inspirational service was led by the Rev. Kenneth Tansor, Rockton, and the installation of conference officers was conducted by the Rev. Raymond Heilener, Galeana. The convention planning committee members were the Rev. Ernest Serr, La Moille, vice president of the conference, and Mrs. Leslie Althaus, Mendota.

Church to hold cookie sale

POLO — Willing Workers Class of the Immanuel United Methodist Church are having their Christmas cookie and candy sale and the proceeds will be used to help finance the Polo Community Council of Churches Dial-A-Devotion project.

Assorted cookies will be $1 a dozen and the candy will be $2 a pound. Boxes of assorted cookies would include: Decorated cut-out sugar cookies, pressed, thumbprints, snickerdoodles, peanut blossoms and molasses.

The following kinds of candy can be ordered: buckeyes, dipped pretzels, divinity, peanut brittle, fudge, caramels, peanut clusters, cashew clusters and annis.

Orders will be taken by Mrs. JoAnn Boddiger, 946-3417 or Mrs. Sue Klock, 946-2287. Orders must be picked up by Dec. 7 and 8.

Council to meet

LEE CENTER — Members of the Church Council of the First Congregational Church of Christ will meet in the sanctuary immediately following the morning worship service, Sunday.

The monthly Fellowship Dinner will be held in the dining room of the Church Sunday, at noon.

Sterling Lodge hosts Rebekah District

POLO — Holtslander Rebekah Lodge No. 70, Sterling was the host to the lodges of Rebekah District Association No. 8 for the fall meeting on Tuesday at the Sterling Odd Fellows Hall.

Billie Baker, Dixon, Past President of Illinois Rebekah Assembly, along with Mrs. Mildred Detweiler, Rock Falls, District Association No. 8 president, Mrs. Robert Heintz, Sterling, District vice president, Mrs. Florence Baker, Rock Falls, District secretary and Mrs. Leona Spencer, Dixon, treasurer were welcomed by Mrs. Ruth Oltmanns, Noble Grand of the Holtslander Lodge.

During the business meeting conducted by Mrs. Detweiler, the election of officers for the coming year was held.

New officers are Mrs. Elizabeth Heintz, Sterling, president; Mrs. Leona Spencer, Dixon, vice president; Mrs. Josephine Aiken, Morrison, treasurer and Mrs. Dorothy Miller, Sterling, secretary.

Installing Marshall, Mrs. Irene Elmendorf, was assisted by her escorts, Mrs. Margaret Swanson, Mrs. Celia Bogott, Mrs. Genevieve Drane, Mrs. Florence Gsell, Mrs. Ruby Morrow and Mrs. Elsie Miller of the Sterling Lodge, who were dressed in white gowns and carried white straw baskets of rainbow colored flowers, the chosen colors of the new president.

The president appointed the following officers to assist her in the spring meeting, Mrs. Clara Broughton, Dixon, chaplain; Mrs. Frances Tyne, Rock Falls, musician; Mrs. Avis Poole, Polo, soloist; Mrs. Vera Kier, Sterling, R.S. of president; Mrs. Florence Gsell, Sterling, L.S. of Vice President; Mrs. Mary Wagner, Amboy, L.S. of president; Mrs. Emma Roberts, Dixon, R.S. of vice president; Mrs. Kathleen Samuel, assistant Warden; Mrs. Carolyn Etheridge, Amboy, assistant Conductor; Mrs. Esther Conibear, Lee Center, assistant inside guardian; Mrs. Lavella Peterson, Morrison, assistant outside guardian; Mrs. Fannie Baker, Rock Falls, and Mrs. Grace Sitter, Dixon, pages.

New president Mrs. Heintz announced her program for the coming year and thanked the committees for helping with her installation.

Mrs. Clark Huyett, Polo announced the Past Presidents of Rebekah District Association No. 8 would hold their fall meeting in her home on Nov. 14 with a scramble dinner at noon. Mrs. Bryant Samuel, Mrs. LeRoy Ruebeck and Mrs. Russell Poole, Polo's past presidents, will make up the committee for the Polo meeting and dinner.

Refreshments were served after the meeting from tables decorated with colors of the rainbow. The lodge hall was

Mrs. Sullivan to speak to Christian Women

ROCHELLE — Rochelle and area women are invited to attend the regular monthly meeting of the Rochelle Christian Women's Club Nov. 18, in the Concord Room of the Vagabond Resort.

"Holiday Fashions" will be the special feature and a trio from the Steward area, Mrs. Pat Arne, Mrs. Karen Bonnell and Mrs. Ruby Francis, will provide the music.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Barbara Sullivan, South Holland.

A free nursery will again be provided at the Faith Lutheran Church on the Flagg Center Rd. from 12 to 3 p.m.

Reservations for the meeting are necessary for both the luncheon and nursery. Mrs. Harold Ross at 562-2780 must have reservations in by Tuesday. Cancellations will not be accepted after the Tuesday date.

Liberian pastor to speak at St. Paul Church

The Rev. Mulbah Jackson, a young pastor of the Lutheran Church in Liberia will speak at 10:45 a.m. Sunday, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Nachusa.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson is a native of the Kpelle Tribe in Liberia, Africa. He decided to become a Christian while he was quite young and was educated in the Lutheran schools of Liberia.

He was ordained by the Lutheran Church in Liberia in 1960. The Rev. Mr. Jackson was pastor of one of the largest congregations in the Lutheran Church of Liberia until recently, when he accepted the challenge of building up a congregation in Gbarnga, the chief city in Bong County and one of the growing centers in interior Liberia.

He is visiting in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Harvey Currens, who were missionaries in Liberia for many years.

Lutheran Forum set

The Adult Forum of St. Paul Lutheran Church will meet Sunday at 9:30 a.m., in the Fellowship Hall. The subject will be "Welfare" and will be discussed by Mrs. Carl Santee and Mrs. Ruth Floto.

Healing services

This Sunday at 4 p.m., in the Methodist Chapel, 210 Peoria Ave., the Ecumenical Healing Service will be led by Grace Saltzman. Other witnesses will share recent experiences. This service is open to anyone interested.

Joanne Whitcombe will provide meditation music at the organ. This is a time of prayer and praise for God's wholeness to replace our incompleteness.

Missionary Society elects new officers

ASHTON — The Missionary Society of the Ashton Bible Church held its election of officers to serve during 1974-1975.

Mrs. Lloyd Ackland was elected as president; Mrs. Carl Friday Jr., vice president; Mrs. Carleton Schmeiser, secretary and Mrs. Orno Kersten, treasurer.

The Missionary Society sends aid to a different missionary each month.

The November missionary will be Lucilda Newton, Africa; December, Border Mission, Tex.; January, Martha Lohrman, Africa; February, Roe Pudaite, India; March, Dorothy Roberts and Marian McNeil, both of Africa; April, Emil Aanderud, Africa; May, Phillip Foxwell, Japan; June, Walter Kruhmin, Mexico; July, Rubean Larson; August, Marvin Ang, South America; September, Stanley Foreid, Portugal; and October, Herman Dyk, Mexico.

The first Sunday of each month a report is given, during the Sunday School hour, regarding the missionary of the month. The collection from the Sunday School classes for this first Sunday is sent to the missionary.

The society is using "The Trumpet Shall Sound" as its theme for the coming year.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist

Mother Church and Extension

(BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS)

© 1972 CHURCHES UNLIMITED, INC.

Rising majestically midst changes in the face of Boston's old Back Bay is the shining white dome of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. Its graceful architecture and functional use of space make it unique among churches of the world. The church itself is today the central edifice of the nearly completed fifteen-acre Christian Science Church Center.

The Church of Christ, Scientist, was founded in 1879 when Mary Baker Eddy and a group of her students voted "to organize a church designed to commemorate the word and works of our Master, which should re-instate primitive Christianity and its lost element of healing." The original edifice of The Mother Church was completed in 1894. For ten years this building was used regularly for church services, but attendance increased to the point where two and finally three Sunday services were needed to accommodate all those who wished to attend. At a cost of $2,000,000 the domed extension was completed in 1906 and all regular services have been held there since that time.

The original edifice is Romanesque in style, built primarily of New Hampshire granite. In 1894, the Back Bay was one of the more recently developed sections of Boston, and this triangular shaped building, with its steep slate roof, 120-foot bell tower, and walls of rough-hewn granite blocks, was a landmark in the area.

The interior of the building was finished mainly in deep oranges and reds with mosaic tile wainscoting and painted fresco decorations in the auditorium, which seats 900. Familiar Biblical subjects were depicted in a number of richly colored stained glass windows, especially designed and constructed for the church.

The extension of The Mother Church presents a striking contrast, with its smooth limestone walls and huge 90-foot dome, rising 224 feet from street level to cupola. Its construction is a combination of Byzantine and Italian Renaissance styles. The architect, Charles Brigham of Boston, combined features from other sources with a concept which was originally Byzantine. As the plans developed, distinctly Eastern features were gradually classicized.

Decorative work in the extension is done in moulded plaster and carved marble and limestone. The functional aspect of the church was one of the prime concerns in its design. With a floor space of more than 1/2 acre, 1 1/4 miles of pews and seven balconies, there is a seating capacity of approximately 4000.

The impressive organ in the extension is one of the largest and finest in the United States. It is approximately eight stories high with a total of 13,389 pipes.

BILLY GRAHAM says about the new motion picture "Time to Run"...

There is no doubt that today we see the family unit being attacked from every side, torn apart and fragmented. TIME TO RUN is a motion picture about a family, about listening, about the silences between people, the unspoken moments, and the moments of anger that don't really accomplish anything. TIME TO RUN openly offers the reality of Jesus Christ as an answer to the human dilemma.

I feel that thousands of people will see a part of themselves in the film. Hopefully, families seeing it will be brought closer together in real understanding and communication.

I urge you to take your children . . . or your parents . . . to see TIME TO RUN when it comes to your community. You may find it more of a mirror than a motion picture!

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Nov. 8, the 312th day of 1974. There are 53 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1932, Franklin Roosevelt defeated Herbert Hoover and became president. And in 1960, John Kennedy defeated Richard Nixon.
On this date —
In 1793, the Louvre museum in Paris was opened to the public.
In 1864, Abraham Lincoln was re-elected president.

In 1889, Montana became the 41st state.
In 1923, Adolf Hitler's beer-hall putsch failed in Munich.
In 1950, the first battle between jet planes took place as American fighters were attacked by North Korean migs.
In 1959, the United Arab Republic and the Sudan ended five years of negotiation by signing an agreement for the division of the Nile Valley waters.
Ten years ago: Britain's new Labor government survived its first two tests in Parliament.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. Lamb — You had a column stating that patients taking an anti-clotting medicine should not take Tylenol because it would intensify the medication. I am taking Coumadin as prescribed by my doctor and, not having read your column, took Tylenol. It seems that you are right, because I did have blood in my urine.

My doctor said Tylenol was okay to take but to stay away from aspirin. I told him about your article that Tylenol should not be used during anti-clotting medication. He suggested that there had been a misprint in the paper and why didn't I write to the paper for a correction. I checked with another doctor and he too said Tylenol was okay — perhaps my kidneys had a problem, so I ended up having an X ray of my kidneys. The X ray proved my kidneys were okay. So, how can one explain the Tylenol problem? I found that bleeding occurred on three different occasions after using Tylenol and am convinced you are right. Any additional information would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — My column stirred up a hornet's nest, and that is good. NO ONE should take acetaminophen (known as Tylenol, Apamid, Conacetol, Temptra and other trade names) if they are taking anti-clotting medicines, (sometimes called blood thinners) without having the doctor take a blood clotting test. There are so many people taking anti-clotting medicines after a heart attack, or because of clotting problems, or even a stroke, that this point deserves the widest possible public dissemination. The fact that people like yourself can buy acetaminophen medicines without any prescription makes it dangerous for you, in my professional opinion.

You can use these medicines without any danger of hemorrhage if you are not taking an anti-clotting medicine. Tylenol has no effect on normal clotting, but it increases the activity of anti-clotting medicine.

This does not mean that people taking anti-clotting medicines can not take Tylenol or other brands. It means the doctor may need to decrease the dose of anti-clotting medicine if the patient takes Tylenol. You could even take it "occasionally," meaning one or two tablets in a week or two.

Beyond that, see your doctor. One manufacturer acknowledges these facts. The AMA Drug Evaluation 1971 states acetaminophen "potentiates action of oral anticoagulants" (page 181).

Drs. Albert Antlitz and Lawrence Awalt of the University of Maryland reported a study of an anti-clotting medicine, Coumadin and acetaminophen (Tylenol) and found it necessary to decrease the dose of Coumadin from 5.8 to 4.4 mg (over 20 per cent) to prevent the clotting test from becoming prolonged while taking Tylenol. (NOTE TO DOCTORS: reference, Current Therapeutic Research, Vol. 10, October, 1968, page 501).

Some patients respond differently than others, but the studies showed conclusively that acetaminophen under any trade name will increase the action of anti-clotting medicines if acetaminophen is used a week or more. Small doses for two days were not shown to have this effect. So, my advice is for anyone taking anti-clotting medicines and Tylenol for several days or more should have his blood tested. Also, I think a warning should be on the label of acetaminophen medicines.

Sophia explains role in 'Brief Encounter'

"There is no basic difference between women, whatever their nationality or background. They have the same emotions," said Sophia Loren.

She was speaking about her portrayal of Anna Jesson in the new Carlo Ponti-Cecil Clarke production of Noel Coward's "Brief Encounter," co-starring Richard Burton. The special will open the 24th consecutive season of the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" on the NBC Television Network Tuesday, 7:30-9 p.m.

"It is such a wonderful story," said the Italian star, "and I like the script very much. The approach has been changed to account for the fact that I am Italian and to make the story contemporary. But it is still the same story Noel Coward wrote."

In the play, Anna Jesson, married and leading a comfortable life, meets a married doctor at a railroad station and they fall in love. However, they soon realize that their romance is doomed.

Miss Loren said she didn't hesitate for a minute when offered the part. Nearly 30 years ago, a British film version starring Celia Johnson and Trevor Howard was produced which has been called a classic. But this didn't deter Miss Loren from undertaking the new production.

She had seen the film and was touched by it, she said, but she stressed that she is bringing her own interpretation to the role. Miss Loren said: "Of course, I don't play Anna in the same way Celia Johnson did. That would be as wrong as it would be impossible. But my interpretation does not change the story."

"I think the principal difference between my portrayal and that given by Celia Johnson is that Anna is now Italian and Italians are extroverts. Celia Johnson played Anna as an introvert. I play her as an outgoing Italian married to an Englishman and living in England."

The special was filmed on location in Winchester, England, and nearby locales. Of the films in which she has appeared, one of Miss Loren's favorites, "The Key," was filmed in England. Her favorite performances in films produced in Italy, she said, include "Two Women" (for which she won the 1961 Best Actress Academy Award), "Marriage, Italian Style," and "Boccaccio '70."

As the titles indicate, Sophia's roles run the gamut from taut drama to carefree comedy. She said: "I like to do both serious and lighthearted roles because, after all, isn't it part of life to cry and to laugh? I like to represent real people with all their laughter and all their sadness, in some of the crazy situations which all of us find ourselves in one time or another. I guess what what I am trying to say is that I like reality; I like honest situations, honestly presented."

THE SPELL OF THE FRAGRANT BATH

A magic-carpet escape from daily tensions. An isolated interlude of sybaritic self-indulgence. A time for you alone . . . to read, to rest, to think, perhaps to dream. This is the spell of the fragrant bath.

Through the ages, the bath has played an important role in the life of civilized man. The Greeks had a word for it meaning "to drive sadness from the mind." The Hebrews believed it purified the soul. The Romans perfected the art of the bath by anointing their bodies with costly, fragrant unguents. In medieval England, the bath was part of the ceremony bestowing knighthood. In modern Germany, Italy and France "the baths"—hot, seawater baths, pine-scented foam baths, mud baths, underwater massages and seaweed jelly applications—are taken to cure, rejuvenate and restore tired minds and weary bodies.

Now in our miracle, modern world all the benefits of luxurious, fragrant bathing, once reserved for the privileged few, are yours to enjoy. Yet, despite the importance presently placed on the body beautiful, far too many active, modern women just jump in, jump out of a quick-cleansing, no-nonsense, five-minute bath. What a pity to miss the health-giving relaxation of the leisurely, fragrant bath and its skin-pampering benefits!

When you were a baby, Mother protected your soft, tender skin with the daily use of gentle oil, softening lotion, and soothing fragrant talc. How many years of neglect has your skin since endured—dried and roughened by sun, cold, wind and heat? Is it too late to counteract this neglect? Of course not! Can you spare the needed fifteen to thirty minutes each day for a really relaxing beauty bath? It will be time well invested for health and beauty.

CHANEL . . . creator of the most treasured name in perfume . . . believes every woman alive deserves to bathe in CHANEL NO. 5 and thus create her own special fragrant environment. Why not try the Japanese custom of taking two baths? First, a hot bath for thorough cleansing with lots of creamy, rich-lathering CHANEL NO. 5 Bath Soap, scrubbing briskly with a long-handled "loofah" or brush, followed by a freshly drawn, warm bath fragrant with one or two capfuls of rich, emollient CHANEL NO. 5 Oil For The Bath. Then lie back and respond to its softening, silkening, scenting caress. Breathe deeply and see how the fragrance lifts your spirits and tensions seem to float away. Close your eyes and let your thoughts run free. Or, enjoy a mini-version of this beauty experience in your on-the-run morning shower. Start with a hot shower and a rich lathering of CHANEL NO. 5 Bath Soap. Then pour a small amount of CHANEL NO. 5 Oil For The Bath on your sponge or shower mitt and apply all over your body before your final rinse.

Relaxed, refreshed; recharged, you are ready for whatever life may bring, wrapped in layers of the lovely, lingering spell of CHANEL.

Time To Run premieres at Dixon Theatre

A group of young people gather to share their love, faith and music during a Jesus meeting in a scene from the new World Wide Pictures release, "Time to Run." The film, which deals with problems facing both parents and young people, will be shown at the Dixon Theater Nov. 13-16.

The generation gap . . . the ecological crisis . . . a young man's search for identity . . . Jesus People . . . a disintegrating marriage . . . the failure of communication . . . a young romance. These are the ingredients of "Time to Run," the latest Eastmancolor release from World Wide Pictures.

The film centers on the conflict between Jeff Cole, a young college student, and his father, Warren Cole, a hard-working, technically minded industrialist. In the opening scene, Warren accepts an award for his work at a nuclear generating plant. Meanwhile, his son, in a television interview, attacks the plant because of its dangerous effects on the environment. The father-son confrontation which follows ends with Jeff's leaving home.

The film then portrays Jeff's search for new meaning in life and the fumbling attempts at reconciliation with his father and mother. In his search he is aided by his girlfriend, Michelle. Through her help, and through the words of Evangelist Billy Graham, who appears in the film, Jeff finds a new orientation for his life at a Jesus People rally.

The business side of the news

James A. Nelson, E. D. Etnyre and Co. vice president and general manager, is shown presenting the Construction Equipment Manufacturers Association award for fifty years of continuous membership to Etnyre's President H. H. Etnyre, right.

Oregon firm honored for 50 years service

CHICAGO — An awards ceremony honoring E. D. Etnyre and Co. for 50 years of continuous membership in the Construction Industry Manufacturers Association (CIMA) was held here in conjunction with CIMA's Fiftieth Annual Meeting at the Palmer House.

CIMA is a National Trade Association composed of over 200 firms which manufacture construction equipment and related components.

CIMA member companies, which include industry giants such as Caterpillar Tractor Co. and International Harvester Co. account for about 95 per cent of the $6 billion annual volume of construction equipment produced in the United States, and a substantial part of world production.

In 1924 E. D. Etnyre and Co. became the thirteenth member of this now very prestigious Association which in recent years has been called on to assist and co-operate with the U.S. Government in the areas of safety, health and environmental performance standards, statistical data and government regulations.

Etnyre, which celebrated its 75th anniversary last year, manufactures road building and maintenance equipment which is used throughout the world.

Adds optometrist

Dr. Lamar Wells, Dr. Vernon Brickley and Dr. Thomas Lawless, optometrists, have announced the addition of Dr. Roger Hill to their associate practice of optometry in Dixon.

Dr. Hill, Shannon City, Iowa, is a graduate of the Illinois College of Optometry and received his doctor of optometry degree in June. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hill and attended Southwestern Community Junior College in Creston, Iowa for his pre-optometric studies. During that time he was named in Who's Who in American Junior Colleges. He was a member of the Titan Honors Society as well as serving as vice president of the college student body and the student senate. Dr. Hill also served as dormitory counselor while at Illinois College of Optometry and was associated with the Phi Theta Upsilon National Professional Fraternity. He is also a member of The American Optometric Association and the Illinois and Iowa State Optometric Associations. Dr. Hill was married in August to the former Pam Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Henry, Creston, Iowa. Mrs. Hill attended Southwestern Community Junior College and the University of Iowa and received a bachelor of arts and master's degree in social work in December, 1973. She is currently employed as a school social worker for the Lee County Special Education Department. Dr. and Mrs. Hill reside at 1300 N. Jefferson Ave. in Dixon.

Lynn A. Brehm has been promoted to the position of manufacturing manager for the Woods Division of Hesston Corp. Brehm joined Woods in February of 1974 as production control manager. In his new position Brehm will be responsible for all manufacturing operations for the Woods Division.

Employees honored

A dinner was recently held to honor Kline's Department Store employees with 25 years of service or more. The event was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Herzog, 728 E. Third St. Gifts of appreciation were given to honored guests of 25 years' service, including Mrs. Rebecca Burgess, Miss Lillian Koerper, Mrs. Ava Lloyd, Mrs. Gertrude Prewitt, Mrs. Grace Sitter and Mrs. Grace Walter.

Pizza Hut sales up

WICHITA, KANSAS — Record first half earnings and sales for Pizza Hut, Inc. were released today by Frank L. Carney, president.

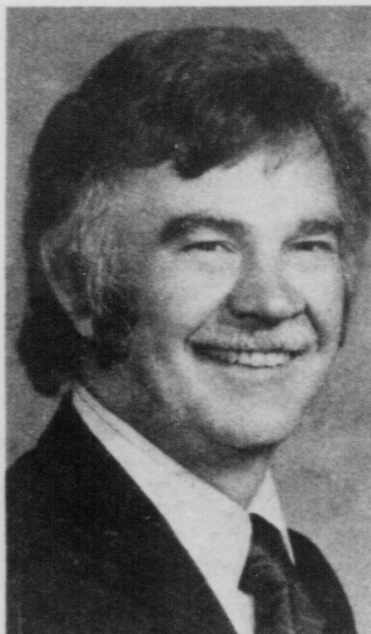

Net sales for the six months ended Sept. 30, increased 43 per cent to $79,832,000 as compared to the restated six-months period last year of $56,016,000.

Net income for the six months of fiscal year 1975 rose 41 per cent to $5,172,000 as against a restated $3,676,000 for the same period last year.

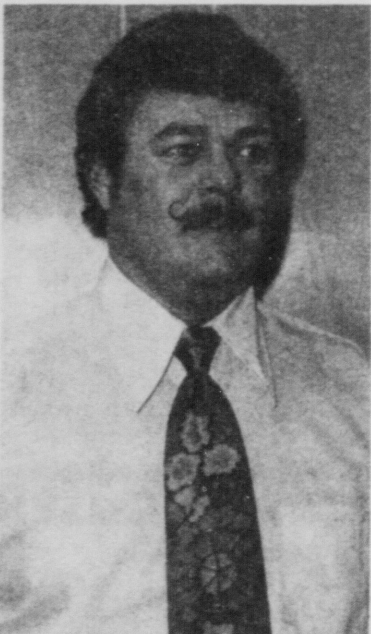

Earnings per share for the six months ended Sept. 30, increased 41 per cent $1.13 a share based on 4,580,936 shares compared to a restated 80 cents based on 4,580,331 shares for the same period last year.

Net sales for the second quarter ended Sept. 30, increased 41 per cent to $42,744,000 as compared to the restated six-month period last year of $30,217,000.

Net income for the second quarter of fiscal year 1975 rose 37 per cent to $2,737,000 as against a restated $1,998,000 for the same period last year.

Keith Renner was named Man of the Year by the National Association of Cosmetology Schools at its 49th Annual Convention held at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel in Atlanta, Ga., recently. The National Association of Cosmetology Schools (NACS) is an organization of private beauty schools in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico. Renner, Sterling, was honored for his work and travels throughout the United States, as chairman of the National Affairs Committee.

Dr. Richard Piller was elected president of the Illinois Prairie State Chiropractic Association at its annual fall convention. Dr. Piller has served as a board member for three years and is state chairman for Comprehensive Health Planning.

To better understand the needs of Dixon Cable TV customers, office secretaries are being placed in the field to learn more about the technical end of cablevision. The girls are observing the installation of transformers on the cable line and relocation of other cables. According to Tom Williams, general manager, the office staff will be better able to answer a customer's question regarding service by learning it firsthand. Pictured above with Jim Wolfe, service technician, is Stacy Smith.

Recession by any other name

NEW YORK (AP) — Debt repayments on installment loans are taking most of the discretionary income of some consumers. Layoffs are mounting. Factories are slowing the production lines.

What do these characteristics suggest? Well, certainly not a recession, if you use the standards of the administration. President Ford says there's no recession. So does his commerce secretary, Frederick Dent.

Earlier in the year Dent referred to the economic decline as an "energy-crisis spasm." Last week, after the third straight quarterly decline in the Gross National Product, he explained "the spasm continues."

What really is occurring, Dent explained, is "sideways waffling," a term that will be variously interpreted as an effort to hide the truth, a lack of awareness, or a frightening attempt at euphony that recalls the reassuring statements of the early Hoover administration.

Mysteriously, the definition of "recession" disappeared with the onset of what once used to be called recession. The most popular definition was two consecutive quarters of declining Gross National Product.

To date, the GNP has fallen for three straight quarters — 7 per cent in the first three months of 1974, 1.6 per cent in the second three, and 2.9 per cent in the third quarter.

Moreover, a further decline, most likely larger than that in the third quarter, is likely to occur in the final three months of the year. And a large number of responsible economists foresee a continued decline early in 1975.

Contributing to the decline is a slowing of factory operations. A Federal Reserve Board report reveals that plants operated at only 79.2 per cent of capacity in the July-September period, the lowest in two years.

Scott D. Eddy has been named local representative of Federal Kemper Insurance Company, according to the company's regional sales manager, Dennis H. Burch. Federal Kemper is a division of the Kemper Insurance group. Eddy formerly was associated with the Rockford Life Insurance Company as sales manager for their Dixon District. He is active in the National Association of Life Underwriters and is a member of the Dixon Elks Club.

Chicago Motor Club-A.A.A. has announced that Eugene Baker has been appointed assistant district manager in the Dixon area. Baker lives at 108 W. Lincoln St. in Mt. Morris. He is married and is a lifelong resident of Mt. Morris. The local office is located at 78 Galena Ave.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: A lot of profane language is being used in certain TV shows. Are these words ("damn" and "hell") in the script or do the stars say them as a kick or whatever you want to call it?—E. RUSSELL SEIPLE, Mobile, Ala.

Actors never ad lib, at least not on dramatic shows. The scripts are read and approved by the networks' "censors," and there are no changes. Talk shows are something else again. There it's all ad lib. The networks will permit a few "hells" and "damns" on dramatic shows these days, providing they fit the story and aren't just used for shock value.

DEAR DICK: Would you please tell me if the fellow who played Kung Fu at first took his own life. I am sure I read it in the paper but my son tells me the same man is playing the part now as when the series started.—PEARL KAUSHNER, Cogan Station, Pa.

Always believe your son. David Carradine created the part of Caine on the ABC-TV series, Kung Fu, and he's still playing it.

DEAR DICK: What happened to the old Rachel of Another World? Will she ever be back on?—MRS. T. B., Palestine, Tex.

The "old Rachel" has been off the NBC soap opera for two years now. That would be actress Robin Strasser, who left the New York-based series because she and her husband (actor Laurence Luckinbill) felt their future was in Hollywood. For the past two years, Rachel has been played by Victoria Wyndham.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell us about the Roller Derby games. How much is for real and how much is an act?—RONALD NOVAKOVICH, Worland, Wyo.

I'm told that the ratio between real and act is about 50-50. Generally, my informant says, the basic scenario is planned ahead—which team will win and by about how much—but then they let the players ad lib the details. Many of the fights are choreographed ahead of time.

DEAR DICK: Are actors Ralph McKer and Vic Morrow related?—J. A. G., Huntington Beach, Calif.

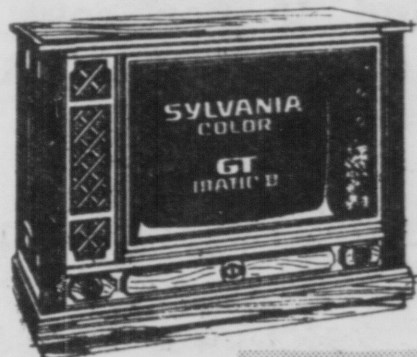

We're all brothers—but, otherwise, no.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if "The Great Gatsby" starring Mia Farrow and Robert Redford is an original or a remake of an Alan Ladd movie. If it's a remake, please tell me what year the first one was made.—OLGA ADAMS, New Orleans, La.

Alan Ladd did make a version of "The Great Gatsby," back in '48. But you really can't call the current release a remake. They were both based on the F. Scott Fitzgerald novel. You wouldn't call "Jesus Christ Superstar" a remake of "The Greatest Story Ever Told," would you?

Will there ever be another legend

By STEPHEN FORD
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Not quite 40 years ago, the scrawny singer from Hoboken who currently refers to himself as "Ole blue eyes" and humbly bills his sold-out concerts as "The Main Event," prompted a new brand of worship for show business performers — something that bridged deification and decadence.

Rudy Vallee had known worship a decade earlier but the bobby-soxers who stormed New York's Paramount Theatre in the '40s swooned over Sinatra with an intensity rivaled only by the alarm of parents and clergy.

A decade after that, a truck-driver from Memphis with springmounted hips surfaced nationally to eclipse the frenzy even Sinatra had generated. Again, parents, educators, clergy and patriots traced the popularity of Elvis Presley to teen-aged rebelliousness, antischool attitudes, godlessness and communism.

From that point, the rest is comparatively easy. We all know that 10 years later, four young men from Liverpool appeared to influence every thought almost every kid had at that time about music-hair-drugs-clothes and sex.

These are the legends, the towering personalities responsible for so much more beyond mere entertainment. But another decade has passed since Beatlemania and we're overdue for another legend. Popular music has been in a definite "holding pattern" for the past four years.

Though the next legend may not necessarily evolve from rock, it seems more likely to come from there, say record soothsayers.

But asking the soothsayers what they believe will be the next legend is like asking for a cure for hiccups — every one has his own ideas.

Rock as a barometer for what is and what's to come may be narrowing the field substantially but remember, the pop and middle-of-the road category rarely blazes new roads into the musical forest. Pop follows the tried-and-true paths.

Certainly jazz is innovative but it always teeters on the perimeter of popular acceptance and besides, every few years it makes a highly touted but very ephemeral comeback.

The Country and Western market is as healthy as ever but don't look there for a new messiah. One of the leading promoters in that field, Tulsa's Jim Halsey who owns a chunk of just about every C&W luminary around, says, "C&W may not be as trendsetting as rock but it's consistent. Our fans are faithful and sales are steady — no ups or downs." Safe, but certainly not the stuff of legends.

Rock appears to be where all the real progress and growth have come. And in rock's continuing drive to achieve that final triumph, a sound that will finally quiet the critics sniping since its birth 20 years ago, it has found itself with some mighty strange bedfellows. In the past seven years, rock has mated with jazz, country, folk, classical, bluegrass, glitter, pop and raunch. And through all those changes, not a single "legend" has emerged.

Some thought that David Bowie was the next anointed star. His style of theatrical rock and glittery presence was certainly novel but Bowie alienated as many people as he attracted. And to be a bonafide legend, your music must last more than two years. According to industry prognosticators, Bowie's star is already fading along with his glitter.

So who will next be responsible for saturating our airwaves, turning our children against us and bombarding us with officially endorsed lunch pails or bubblebath? The reasons people paid to predict that sort of thing are playing it so close to the vest is simply because they don't know either.

Mark Meyerson, director of artists and repertoire for Atlantic Records, points a cautious finger towards jazz. "Herbie Hancock is the first jazz musician to get a single in the top 100 in a looong time," he said. "His single 'Chameleon' went gold recently and that shows that jazz certainly has wider appeal these days. People are dancing again and progressive rock was never good for that. It was too hard to dance to. But jazz is mainly music and ideal for dancing.

"As far as legends go, who can predict? Experience shows that they always take us by surprise. We can't see them even when they're right in front of us. When they hit, they hit fast."

Meyerson estimated the closest thing to a superstar right now is Stevie Wonder. "He's been around for ten years at least," explained Meyerson, and he appeals to everyone but he does lack the influence Presley or The Beatles had.

"Sly of the Family Stone wielded more influence in music and lifestyle than Wonder but he's declining. Sly was one of the most creative forces to come along in six years but he never landed in the mass market. It could be sociological. He's black and can't count on the same acceptance white groups from America or Britain can. Maybe if Sly was white, we'd have another legend."

Ira Mayer, a young man who charts the weekly FM radio airplay report for Record World magazine, says there are no legends looming at all in the musical horizon.

"The trend seems to be major groups from the Sixties splitting up to reform with members of other big groups: Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young; the Souther, Hillman and Fury band or Bad Company. But that's nothing new, bigbands of the Forties were always switching personnel. Actually, I don't see anything new.

"Any group with the potential to be a legend has got to count on the big record labels to promote the hell out of 'em and the companies are very careful these days, even stingy. And that's because sales are down. So are new releases and the signing of new artists. If they're wary of signing new acts, the chances of finding a new legend are, naturally, lower.

Cromie Circle Sunday

Listening and learning with Garson Kanin in Hollywood during its glittering years is a rare opportunity and visitors to "The Cromie Circle" on Sunday, telecast on channel 9 (following the late news at approximately 1:30 a.m.), will share his memorable adventures.

In another enlightening segment, a British television research team who came to Chicago to produce a documentary for Thames Television discuss their project. Sue McConachy, David Gill, and Allen Afriate produced a one-hour documentary concerning the Polish immigrants who came to America and settled in this part of the world. This documentary will be included in a series entitled "A Nation of Immigrants," to be telecast on WGN Television 9 during 1976. Ms. McConachy was also involved in the production of "World at War," which is telecast each Sunday afternoon from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on WGN Television 9.

It has been said of Garson Kanin that he can do anything in the literary or dramatic field that he sets his mind to, for he has won international acclaim as author, director, producer, and playwright of both stage and screen productions.

Now the celebrated director and playwright finally shares his memorable adventures on and off the lot in "Hollywood: Stars and Starlets, Tycoons and Flesh-Peddlers, Moviemakers and Moneymakers, Frauds and Geniuses, Hopefuls and Has-Beens, Great Lovers and Sex Symbols" — which he shares with "The Cromie Circle's" viewers.

"The Cromie Circle" is produced and directed by Dick Norris for WGN Television 9.

Carlin's point is to make a point

By STEPHEN FORD
NEW YORK (NEA)—It's not his unconventional attire that stuns you in learning he grossed over $300,000 last year and expects to exceed that this year. Many show biz types dress bohemian as part of their occupation's endemic eccentricity.

It's not the wispy beard or shoulder-length hair either. Most rock musicians sport more upholstery on their heads and face than the average person does on his entire body.

Then what is it that makes comedian George Carlin so incongruous?

Carlin, 38, is among the humor avant-garde led by Lily Tomlin, Richard Pryor and Woody Allen—comedians who don't depend on mother-in-law jokes as their staple fare. What sets Carlin apart from even them, however, is his over-all "hippie" image. Certainly no drawback these days when just about every decent American family has at least one "freak" in its midst, Carlin's image is only one facet of a man whose other sides reveal a sensitive, intelligent and articulate observer of society.

He is usually referred to by the press as a latter day Lennie Bruce. It is an analogy Carlin is weary of.

"If someone wants to say I'm a lot like Lennie and my material is similar," he said, "then let them also say I'm a lot like Jonathan Winters or Mel Brooks or Don Rickles because I've used a little of their humor for inspiration. I like them all and don't want to be considered a rip-off of any comedian, even Lennie Bruce."

Carlin, dressed as usual in faded jeans and wearing a maroon tee-shirt with "Raisin" in white letters across the chest, appears ever casual but always capable. He can make jokes about his obscenity bust in Milwaukee two years ago, then quickly reel around to the subject of bigotry or the plight of the Irish race. Though his subject can be deadly serious and something close to his heart, Carlin punctuates all conversation with a repertoire of voices and characterizations that humorously, but effectively, make his point.

With three very successful albums out, Carlin's fans know him to be totally irreverent with the most sacred cows fair game for a verbal assault generously laced with street talk and vulgarisms—but there's always a reason for anything Carlin says, nothing is calculated to shock.

But Carlin can be shocked and he does have some concept of "bad taste" though his critics say otherwise.

"There isn't a lot that outrages me," he said, "except racial jokes, ethnic jokes. I find nothing funny about that—just tasteless."

But religion enjoys no such protection from raconteur Carlin. It is one of his most fertile areas for routines. "Religion is self-imposed, race is not. Nobody asks to be born black or white, but people voluntarily choose their religion. I am an Irish Catholic from New York and I use that in my act. I'm not putting down Irish Catholics when I do it, I'm telling a story. And besides," he grins, "it's okay to hit your own gang."

"All my routines, religion included, have an underlying theme. I'm trying to make a point, the comedy is metaphor. If I can get my message together, then convey it to you and give you a laugh in the process, great! I've filled three roles, jester, sage and poet. And we all have our ideological roles, there are politicians, essayists, followers and us, the comedians. I portray the sympathetic stupe trying to make some sense out of it all but instead can only see the absurdity.

"A few years ago I agreed to help Jesse Unruh in California when he ran against (Ronald) Reagan. He lost, California lost and I lost because I saw, close-up, the absurdity of sincerity versus slick. I'm out of politics, never again. I'm a comic person and always will be."

To see Carlin in concert unveils yet another facet of him. Interspersed with his funny stories is an innate sense of grace as he glides across the stage in an imaginary street scene or accompanies his routine with obscene mime.

Though he's down on acting, especially after an unhappy period in his life a few years ago when all he thought about was burning up the screen with his acting talent but instead left Hollywood cold, Carlin would now consider doing a movie but something tailored to his style.

Welk's 50 years recalled in musical fashion

The successes and trials of Lawrence Welk and his band are concertized in the Sunday program on channel 9 from 9 to 10 p.m.

Each tune selected recalls specific landmarks in Welk's 50-year career in this program inspired by his new book, "Ah-One, Ah-Two, Life With My Musical Family."

Starting out with the formation of the Lawrence Welk Network (now 254 stations strong), the songs range from "Everything's Coming Up Roses" by the whole company, to "Look For the Silver Lining" by Norma Zimmer and Jim Roberts, and "Manhattan" by the band, recalling his first box-office sell-out at Madison Square Garden.

Others include "Together Wherever We Go" with Bobby Burgess and Cissy King, "I Asked the Lord" by Tom Netherton, "Yellow Rose of Texas" (Guy and Ralna Hovis), and "Cherokee," the Arthur Duncan — Jack Emel — Bobby Burgess challenge tap dance.

"Dear Hearts and Gentle People" (Ava Barber) salutes Welk's TV fans, Tanya Welk solos "Wonderful," and the band concertizes "Stormy Weather."

Better tax break for the self-employed

The new pension reform law lets you put 15 per cent of your earned income (up to $7500 a year) in your own retirement plan. And you don't pay federal income taxes on it until you retire, when you're likely to be in a lower tax bracket.

To qualify for the new tax benefits, you do have to put your tax-deferred income into a retirement plan which conforms with the new law. Your Country Companies agent has several plans, providing you with a variety of ways in which to fund your own retirement program.

The Country Companies. We're a little different than most insurance people.

Dr. See sees porno as perfect TV fare

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Pornographic movies on television? It may happen.

That's the view of Dr. Carolyn See, an expert on porno films, who has written a book — "Blue Money" — about her adopted field. She thinks the day will come when porno pictures will be shown on TV. It probably will be late at night, she says, but she believes it will happen.

"Pornographic movies are somehow not subject to the same cyclical rules," she says, "that apply to other kinds of movies. Pornographic movies and 'devices' may be running out of steam, but porno movies are moving up."

"And I think they'll continue to proliferate until somebody, at least, makes a really classy porno film."

Dr. See is the last person you'd expect to be in her area of study. She's a flaxen-haired, blue-eyed, innocent-looking woman. She got into it all via the back door, so to speak.

She was doing her doctoral thesis about Hollywood books and naturally got into the soft-core porno books of the '60s. During a trial involving one of those books, she was called as an expert witness. She found she had the field to herself and that's how a specialty was born.

"The pornographers came to know me and trust me," she says. It's better than a kick in the head.

Born 15 years too late. That's the sorry refrain from tall (5' 9") red-headed and very beautiful Barbara Rhoades.

"I should have been here in the old days," she says, "when they were making those big and lavish musicals. I think it would have been fun to have been here then."

But, as fate would have it, Barbara is here now. And not doing at all badly. Whenever there's a call for a tall and beautiful girl, she gets the part.

Actually, acting is only her second trade. Basically, she's a dancer. She was dancing on Broadway in "Funny Girl" when Universal spotted her and offered her a contract.

"I came out from New York to be a star," she says. "And it's been hard work ever since."

She did two films for

BARBARA RHOADES:
15 years too late.

Universal — "Don't Just Stand There," with Robert Wagner and Mary Tyler Moore, and "The Shakiest Gun in the West," with Don Knotts.

"They released me from my contract even before the pictures went out," she says. "Maybe they knew something."

Cast adrift, she decided she liked acting. She studied at the Actor's Studio and became a skilled comedienne. With her physical attributes and her new-found acting skill, she's worked pretty steadily ever since.

"Curious, though," she says. "I've never danced again. And I've never gotten the guy — except for Don Knotts — that really doesn't count."

She says she's just hoping that some day Hollywood producers will think of her as "that girl, Barbara," instead of "that tall girl, Barbara." It could happen.

Born Free

Veteran hunter Ken Warren (James Vickery) is unable to track down and kill man-eating lions and the Adamsons (Gary Collins and Diana Muldaur) are asked to take over the search in "Man Eaters of Merti," to be colorcast on NBC Television Network's "Born Free," Monday, Nov. 11 7-8 p.m.

The two lions give the searchers a difficult time, covering their tracks and setting up the hunters for an ambush, until young members of a local tribe join the Adamsons.

Paul Krasny directed the teleplay by Nina Laemmle and Sy Salkowitz from a story by Carl Foreman.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE B-689: Randolph B., aged 42, is head of a factory that employs 800 men and women.

"Dr. Crane," he said, "we have been using your 'Test of Horse Sense' in selecting new workers. For its 60-minute battery of five sub-tests works very well in weeding out the poor readers, plus those who lack practical gumption and versatile mechanical experience."

"And even our sales manager swears by the test, saying it simplifies his selection of new salesmen who will stick to the job and zoom business."

Sense" problems were used to weed out the braintruster (bookish) college men who were candidates for officer training in the U.S. Navy Air Corps.

There are five parts or sub-tests in this one-hour battery. Test I, covers "Range of Practical Information" and contains 25 statements of the True-False type, such as:

T F (1) A gallon of water weighs more than a gallon of oil.

Test II is a 25-point "Social Information Test" of the "multiple choice" (four-answer) type, as:

(1) A spare is a term in: FOOTBALL - BASEBALL - BRIDGE - BOWLING. Test III deals with "Business Judgment," covering 25 advertising and personnel problems, such as:

(14) Bill is an efficient worker but resents taking orders. He is likely to be a trouble maker. It would be wise to:

—Discharge him at once.
—Place him on probation for a month.
—Make him a straw boss.

Test IV is headed "Mechanical and Technical Judgment" for it contains 25 problems of the "analogy" sort, as:

(18) Mason: Trowel: Machinist: MORTAR - MICROMETER - HARROW - MATTOCK

Test V counts 25 points and covers "Logical Thinking," as:

(14) A hunter pitched his tent, then walked five miles, due south and shot a bear. He then proceeded eight miles due east and ate his lunch.

But he was then no farther from his tent than when he shot the bear! What kind of bear did he shoot?

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Miss Kramer weds Mr. Whitmore

MR. AND MRS. ERIC VON ROBERT WHITMORE

The Evangelical United Methodist Church, Polo, was the setting for the recent wedding ceremony for Miss Vicki Kay Kramer, daughter of the Elwood Kramers, Polo, and Eric Von Robert Whitmore, son of the Clyde Robert Whitmores, Wheat Ridge, Colo.

The Rev. P. O. Nystrand performed the 7 p.m. double-ring candlelight ceremony. Mrs. Craig McGuire, Polo, provided organ accompaniment for vocal selections by Miss Judy Lawson, Polo.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor-length gown of jewel crepe over bridal taffeta. Ruffles of Peau d'Ange lace trimmed the bishop sleeves, cuffs, and around the yoke. A wide satin ribbon accented the waistline, coming together into a triple bow and streamers in back. The bell skirt fell into a chapel-length train and was bordered with Peau d'Ange lace and satin ribbon. Her lace-bordered mantilla was held by a crown. A blusher and Camelot tapers completed the headdress. She carried a cascading bouquet arrangement of jackstraw poms, orange roses, and stephanotis.

Miss Julie Blum, Polo, attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a floor-length maize-colored gown of rayon chiffon with a flounced hem. The empire-waisted gown was accented with lace trimmed with matching ribbon. The bodice was accented with spaghetti straps.

Miss Tina Sikula, Normal, and Miss Marcia Schnulle, Polo, attended the bride as bridesmaids. Their apricot-colored gowns were styled identically to the maid of honor's gown. All three attendants carried fire-side baskets containing butter-scotch daisies, orange roses, springer, and jackstraw poms. For their headpieces, they wore arrangements of butterscotch daisies.

Robert Essex, Dixon, attended the bridegroom as best man and Michael Whitmore, Milwaukee, Wis., brother of the bridegroom, and Larry Fleishner, Silvis, served as groomsmen. Steve Kramer, Polo, the bride's brother, and Dave Taylor Sr., Dixon, served as ushers for the wedding guests.

Miss Carrie Cassens, Polo, was the ceremonial flower girl and was attired in a maize-colored dress styled identically to the maid of honor's dress. She carried a white basket filled with yellow rose petals. Master Dave Taylor Jr. served as ring-bearer for the wedding ceremony.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in Fellowship Hall, where Miss Susan Baumann, Normal, registered the guests. A six-tiered wedding cake decorated with yellow and green flowers surrounded a gold water fountain. Refreshments were served by the Willing Workers Club.

The new Mrs. Whitmore, a 1973 graduate of Polo High School, is presently employed at Kroger's Grocery Store, Dixon. Mr. Whitmore, a Farmington High School graduate, is also employed at Kroger's Grocery Store, in the produce department.

Since their return from a wedding trip to Disney World in Florida, the newlyweds have been residing at 1008 N. Dixon Ave., Dixon.

Opening lead—♥ 4

By Oswald & James Jacoby
"Out, out damned spot" might be a good title for today's hand.

South wasn't happy with the opening lead or with the dummy but happy or unhappy he had to play the hand.

He started with a successful heart finesse. It was apparent that he would need a lot of luck in the minor suits so he started by carefully leading his eight of clubs—not the deuce. Up with dummy's ace and back for a successful finesse of the jack. Now he cashed the king and led that carefully preserved deuce to dummy's six spot.

Now he was ready to attack diamonds. He did so by leading a low diamond from dummy. East played low and South's eight lost to West's queen.

West knocked out dummy's ace of hearts, whereupon South led the jack of diamonds; finessed against East's king; led dummy's last diamond and wound up with two hearts, four clubs, three diamonds and all the marbles.

Note that South had to remember to lead the eight, not the deuce, of clubs and a small diamond, not the jack, when he started that suit.

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I am 30 years old and I have rheumatoid arthritis. By the time I learned what rheumatoid arthritis is and what it can do to a person, I needed surgery.

If facts about arthritis could reach the public, the pain and agony that changes the lives of the afflicted ones as well as their families could be greatly reduced.

At least 20 million Americans have arthritis severe enough to require medical care. Arthritis cripples more people than all accidents combined.

No form of arthritis should be treated at home without the guidance of a qualified physician. And please, Ann, tell your readers to steer clear of quacks. They net about 400 million dollars a year from people who are in such terrible pain, they are willing to try anything.

I learned a lot from our local chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, but, unfortunately, I didn't get smart until it was too late.

Will you please print my letter and add some facts of your own that will help educate the public? Thanks, Ann.—Mrs. J.

Dear Mrs. J.: Thank you for reminding us that arthritis is this nation's No. 1 crippler. I am told that about 3½ million people are so badly disabled by this disease that they cannot work. Nearly as many people are unemployed because of arthritis as heart disease. Yet the federal government spends only 68 cents per year on the arthritis victim as compared with $9.10 per year on the heart victim.

Children, young adults, and people in their productive years are the ones hardest hit by the most disabling varieties of arthritis. Some of these can affect the heart, kidneys, blood vessels, cause blindness and even death.

The best way to help in the fight against arthritis is to support the Arthritis Foundation. Generously.

Dear Ann Landers: After four unsuccessful marriages and five nervous breakdowns I have finally found happiness, love, peace of mind and a good psychiatrist.

The man who wants to marry me is younger than I am, which is why I am writing. I met Ray after I was released from the hospital several months ago. I have kept nothing from him. He knows my complete history and says it doesn't matter. All he wants is a chance to be by my side and give me love and emotional support.

I have two beautiful children and am expecting again. I'm not sure that Ray is the father of this child, and have told him so. He still wants to marry me. I am 26 and Ray is 24. What do you say, Ann—should I take the chance?—Uncertain Lady

Dear Lady: Grab him. Any man who is willing to marry a pregnant, 26-year-old, four-time-loser with two children, and wants only to be at her side and give her love and emotional support, is a one-in-a-million catch. Congratulations.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother is a nice lady, but she has a loud voice.

Whenever I am out playing ball with the guys she yells "Henn-n-nny" and honest, she could wake the dead. When I go to find out what she wants, she doesn't want anything. She just wants to know where I am. The guys laugh their heads off. I am 11 years old. What should I do?—Laughed At

Dear Lady: Before you go out to play with the guys tell your mother exactly where you are going and what you'll be doing—then she won't have to yell for you.

Fagan-Hammelman nuptial vows

Miss Sherri Jean Fagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Fagan, Dixon, and Randall Gene Hammelman, son of the Gene Hammelmans, Rock Falls, were united in marriage recently in the Church of the Brethren, Dixon. The 7 p.m. double-ring wedding was performed by the Rev. William Burgess in a candlelight ceremony.

Dan Graham, Dixon, accompanied himself on the guitar while providing vocal selections to wedding guests, Mrs. Jeff Stoner, Dixon, was the organist. Hurricane candle lamps attached to the pews of the church were lit by Miss Denise Fagan, the bride's sister, at the beginning of the ceremony.

The bride wore a floor-length, white satin princess styled gown with an A-line skirt and scoop neckline. Hand clipped chantilly lace accented with pearls was featured on the bodice, Juliet sleeves and on the detachable cathedral length train. The lace-edged chapel length mantilla was held in place with a satin Juliet headpiece. The bride carried a cascade of blue carnations, white mums and baby's breath with royal blue ribbons.

Miss Julie Powell attended the bride as maid of honor and was attired in a royal blue satin gown featuring an empire waist, stand-up collar and long puffed sleeves with covered buttons on the cuffs. She wore a garland of flowers in her hair which matched the blue carnations, white mums and baby's breath she carried in her basket.

Bridesmaids Miss Dana Fagan, Dixon, sister of the bride, and Miss Rhonda Hammelman, Rock Falls, the bridegroom's sister, wore powder blue gowns styled identically to the maid of honor's.

Cecil Scanlan, Rock Falls, served as best man and the groomsmen were Johnny Hammelman, Rock Falls, the bridegroom's brother, and Donald Dickey, Rock Falls, Steve, Bob and Bradley Fagan, brothers of the bride, ushered the wedding guests.

The reception was held in the Rama Room at the Ramada Inn, Dixon. Miss Jeannie Surraat and Miss Betty

Wa-Tan-Ye holds meeting

The Dixon Wa-Tan-Ye Club met Wednesday evening at the Nachusa House with 18 members present.

Miss Mary Williford and Mrs. Ray Joyce were hostesses. Fall decorations graced the tables. Mrs. Juanita Anderson, president, conducted the business meeting. The resignation of Mrs. Viola Crawford was regrettably accepted.

A discussion of the annual Christmas Party to be held at Eddie's Supper Club on Dec. 8 was held. In the absence of Mrs. Howard Hall, service chairman, Miss Williford, explained the Thanksgiving basket project and the names of needy families were distributed. The annual bake sale and bazaar will be held at the Vogue Shoppe on Nov. 23 at 9 a.m. A silent auction of White Elephants was held to help defray the expense of the Christmas Party.

A report of the annual convention at Clinton, Iowa, was given by Mrs. Marian Hinrichs.

Open House at Legion Hall

The American Legion Dixon Post No. 12 will hold an "Open House" Monday, Veterans Day, in Legion Hall.

Lunch will be served from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. by the Legion Auxiliary. Auxiliary members are asked to call Mrs. Charles Bishop at 288-1754 for donations of food.

The public is invited to attend this event.

Club holds scramble dinner

Dorothy Chapter No. 371, Order of the Eastern Star, met Friday evening at the Dixon Masonic Temple. A 6:30 p.m. scramble dinner preceded the meeting.

Mrs. Rachel Stewart, Mrs. Nadine Moats and Mr. and Mrs. Jean Stinson, prepared the meal. Mrs. Lois Krug served as Worthy Matron pro tem. Mrs. Florence Bastian served as Warder pro tem.

The annual election of officers was held and the following members were unanimously elected for the coming year: Worthy Matron, Tracey Stinson; Worthy Patron, Jean (Barney) Stinson; Associate Matron, Shirley Goerlitz; Associate Patron, Chester Moats; Secretary, Nadine Stein; Treasurer, Lucille Peacock; Conductress, Bernice Lepthien; Associate Conductress, Alberta Wilke.

Fourteen Past Matrons and Five Past Patrons, were introduced on the Grand Chapter committees. Following the meeting, George Hill, worthy patron, presented miniature gavels to all past matrons for their help and encouragement throughout the years.

It was announced that Open Installation will be held on Friday evening, November 15, beginning at 8:15 p.m., at the Dixon Masonic Temple.

Palmyra Grange

The Palmyra Grange Club will hold a card party on Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Palmyra Grange Hall.

Five hundred and pinochle will be played.

CRYING FOR FOOD— Boy in Rangpur district of Bangladesh cries for food. More than a million people in the district have gone to government camps for gruel and wheat pancakes. (AP Wirephoto)

Demos must 'deliver', says Walker

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker says Democrats, enjoying control of both houses of the Illinois General Assembly for the first time since 1937, will be held responsible "if we don't deliver."

"The people, in unmistakable terms, have rejected the Republican policies of over-spending that would have led inevitably to a tax increase," Walker said Wednesday.

Basking in the glow of the Democratic party's sweeping election victory at a lengthy news conference, Walker outlined legislative plans for 1975 he said would carry out the expressed will of the people.

Calling overspending by Republican legislators "the No. 1 issue in the campaign," Walker said prudent budgeting would be a top priority of his administration.

He outlined these other legislative goals:

- A new state mental health code.
- Increases and changes in workmen's compensation, unemployment insurance and the state's minimum wage.
- Improvements in the state's criminal justice system, with emphasis on passage of a law requiring a trial within 60 days of arrest.
- New consumer protection laws.
- Walker declined to specify what sort of legislation he was after on this subject, suggesting only a law to "do away with credit practices in the garnishment area."

—Strict campaign disclosure laws requiring all candidates to disclose their income, assets, liabilities and net worth.

—Tax relief. The governor said he would seek elimination of the sales tax on medicine, but said proposals for further relief would depend on the economy.

Walker scoffed at the notion that intra-party squabbling between his legislative supporters and lawmakers loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley might hinder passage of the legislation he is seeking.

"Members of the General Assembly have heard the people speak. They have gotten the message. It will be a good relationship," he said.

Walker refused to speculate on who might be appointed House speaker when the Democrats take control.

change Ford's economic program."

The election result, he said, "is a reflection of repugnance over the last two years — Watergate and such things." He did not elaborate.

He was asked if Congress

Democratic landslide won't lead to policy change

CHICAGO (AP) — Treasury Secretary William Simon says that despite the Democratic landslide the Ford Administration will not abandon its economic program "because we continue to believe it is in the best interests of all Americans."

Simon said Wednesday in a talk before the Chicago Economic Club that "nothing has happened in either the political or economic arenas to change our views."

The Ford Administration, he said, is not unwilling to compromise but is pledged "to a policy of moderation and restraint, a policy that still offers by far the best hope of curbing inflation and restoring a pattern of healthy, stable growth to our economy."

Simon said that the No. 1 domestic problem is inflation but "it is not yet out of control."

The nation also is confronted, he said, with "a growing sluggishness in our economy that will be eventually recorded as a recession."

Factors that set off inflation had been building up for more than a decade, Simon said. To combat the problem, he said:

"We must sharply rein in federal spending; we must enact new spending programs only if we are willing to pay for them; the Federal Reserve must complement this fiscal discipline by keeping a reasonably close rein on the growth of money and credit; and we must begin shifting far more of our resources into capital investments."

Simon said the nation must firmly resist pressures to overheat the economy again and that this can be done by enacting programs to cushion the impact of inflation where it strikes, programs such as low income tax relief, extended unemployment benefits and expanded public employment.

The Ford economic program, he said, "is just the right medicine because it is carefully constructed to meet all of these objectives. Furthermore, it would provide new incentives for business to make long-term investments."

Simon said it will be tough to enact the program and stick to it.

"I strenuously disagree with the doomsayers who say that the American economy is on the verge of collapse, but I do believe that if we want to preserve the free enterprise system in this country we're going to have to fight for it," he said.

Earlier, Simon told a news conference that he did not believe the additional Democrats in Congress as a result of Tuesday's elections "would work to would now go along with Ford's proposed five per cent surtax.

"Yes, I surely hope it will," he said. "We must balance expenditures and income, but I'm sure that there will be some compromise along the way."

Percy urges gasoline tax to cut its use

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Charles Percy is urging a 10 per cent mandatory reduction of U.S. oil consumption by levying increased federal gasoline taxes or reducing oil imports.

A tough national energy policy is the only way the United States can "get the message across to the oil cartel that we mean business about liberating ourselves from our dependence on foreign oil," Percy said Wednesday at a seminar of taxmen at the Chicago Tax Club.

Percy said voluntary conservation of gasoline will not work and for that reason he was urging "strong action" to include either the tax increases with rebates to relieve hardships or cutting petroleum imports on a month-by-month basis with a goal of reducing import levels by 30 per cent in 1976.

Other measures which could reduce consumption, Percy said, including a tax paid by car manufacturers based on the rate of gas consumption of each vehicle produced; strict enforcement of the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit and tough building codes covering heating cooling, lighting and insulation with incentives to encourage the remodeling of existing buildings to make them energy efficient.

Percy also proposed that once a week people who have cars not be allowed to drive to save gasoline. Undetermined penalties would be assessed for violators, he said.

"By failing to take strong action at home to reduce consumption, we find ourselves negotiating not from strength but from weakness caused by a lack of resolve," Percy said.

"Once the U.S. demonstrates leadership in this area other importing nations will be inclined to follow our example," he said. "The result would put heavy pressure on the oil cartel to reduce its prices."

He said he would support proposals to limit foreign tax credits for oil production income; phase out over three years the domestic depletion allowance for major oil companies; and repeal depletion allow-

District 8 Music Festival Saturday

The Illinois Music Education Association will sponsor the annual District-All State Music Festival for District 8 Saturday, hosted by Northern Illinois University, in the newly completed Music Building located on the extreme northeast edge of the NIU campus.

District 8 President James Wiltz, choral director at Dixon High School, has been working for months correlating the selection of participating students, guest conductors, music to be performed and clinic sessions for the music educators.

Nine counties in northwest Illinois are assigned to District 8. Students from the junior high grade levels will participate in their own concert, featuring a festival band, chorus and orchestra. The Junior Division concert is scheduled for 5 p.m. in the Concert Hall.

Students from the participating 50 high schools in District 8 will present their concert for festival band, chorus and orchestra at 7 p.m. Both concerts

Clyde Gelderloos, operator of the service, and now holding a contract with the City of Rochelle, was the lone bidder. Cipolla went on to say, "I had hoped the bid price would stay at the $2.25 figure now being paid, and felt the increase was too high."

"I have compared our figures with surrounding towns in northern Illinois, and find only one is charging above the $3.15 figure. Most, according to information I have gathered, are in the $2 bracket, Cipolla stated.

Cipolla further went on to say, "I am going to propose to the city council at our November 12 meeting, that the City of Rochelle go into the garbage business."

Cipolla outlined his plan by stating he felt City Revenue Sharing Funds could be used for the purchase of two trucks. Cipolla further proposed money from the garbage tax levy should cover operating and maintenance expenses, plus the hiring of four men at $800 a month.

Questioned as to "Supervision responsibility," Cipolla stated, he felt this would come under Commissioner Rasmussen's department. Commissioner Phil May, suggested that he felt the City Council should "sit down with Clyde Gelderloos" and try to renegotiate the contract bid price.

No formal action was taken at this meeting, and Commissioner Rasmussen told members he would have a proposal ready for the next City Council meeting.

Oregon driver is held

Larry A. Heather, 21, Oregon, was being held in Lee County jail on multiple charges, following a one-car accident early today on Lowell Park Road.

Heather faces charges of improper use of registration, no valid registration, failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, reckless driving and having no valid driver's license.

According to investigating Lee County Sheriff's Deputies, Heather was traveling north, one mile north of Lowell Park, when his car left the pavement and traveled into a ditch, hitting a tree. The car returned to the pavement and spun around, deputies said, before going off the roadway a second time and striking another tree.

Heather was scheduled to appear in court today.

Rock Falls man faces charges

A Rock Falls man, Randall L. Bollman, 25, was arrested Thursday by Lee County Sheriff's Deputies. Bollman was stopped in his car on U.S. 52, south of Dixon, and charged with failure to stop at a stop sign, fleeing police, and speeding 21 miles per hour over the legal limit. Bollman was released on bond.

Unhurt as his car hits deer

OREGON — Bill J. Gensler, 24, Rockford, escaped injury Thursday when his car slammed into a deer on Ill. 64, four miles east of Oregon.

Gensler told investigating Ogle County Sheriff's Police he was traveling west on the highway when the nine-point buck ran in front of his car. An estimated $500 damage was done to the front end of Gensler's 1969 Ford.

Boy, 14, caught in window spree

A 14-year-old Dixon boy was taken into custody by Dixon Police in connection with a window-breaking spree in the downtown area. The juvenile was accused of damaging windows in several stores in recent weeks. He was turned over to juvenile authorities for prosecution.

Rochelle overpass problems discussed

ROCHELLE — Several Rochelle officials met in Springfield Thursday with State Director of Transportation, Langhorn Bond, to discuss an overpass in Rochelle.

Mayor Bill Cipolla said the state supported the overpass only if it would be constructed on U.S. 51 in Rochelle. The state would then pay 50 per cent of the cost. If the city chose to place the overpass at another location, the city would have to absorb all expenses. Since a study on the cost of the overpass four years ago, the cost has doubled from approximately $1.5 million to $3 million.

Commissioner James I. McCaslin stated the state is very much aware of the problem and he said Bond told the group the state would not consider relocation of U.S. 51 out of the Rochelle area. McCaslin also said cost figures on the project would be received from the state in the next few weeks.

Commissioner Clarence Rasmussen said the construction could not be started for four years and it would take about two years to complete the project. Rasmussen also said there would be problems with detours through Rochelle while construction is in progress.

Bond also emphasized the problems with detours and added a bond issue referendum would have to go before the people of Rochelle to help finance the project. No definite action was taken at this time.

SVC library seeks local history books

The Sauk Valley College library staff is conducting a drive designed to enhance its local history collection, with particular emphasis on material regarding Lee County. Any area residents knowing of such material which the college could acquire are urged to contact Duane Paulsen, director of the SVC Learning Resource Center at the college.

Paulsen said a specific target of the current materials drive includes any of a number of good, comprehensive histories of Lee County published between 1880 and 1920. These include: "History of Lee County," by H. H. Hill (1881); "Portrait and Biographical Record of Lee County" (1892); "History of Lee County," by Frank Stevens (1914); "Early Lee County," by William Barge (1918); "Historical Encyclopedia of Illinois," and "History of Lee County" (1904).

Since the college is a relative newcomer in the Sauk Valley area, its library has not yet developed an extensive collection of local material published regarding the rich past of the Sauk and Rock River Valley. Paulsen said the library in the past several years has obtained a number of older works including a history of Whiteside County and "The Biography of a Country Town; U.S.A.," a history of Amboy.

Material regarding local history is of particular value to college students because these original works are unique and contain

Most victories to biggest spenders

By BARRY HANSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Money wasn't everything in this week's Illinois congressional elections, but it helped.

An Associated Press check of campaign spending reports in a dozen key congressional races showed that in every case but two, the winner was the biggest spender.

In two of the three districts where an incumbent was not running, the winning candidates spent more than the losers.

The money flowed most freely on the lakeshore north of Chicago, where Democrat Abner Mikva outspent and defeated first-term Rep. Samuel Young.

Reports filed with the Illinois Secretary of State's office showed that Mikva spent $198,232 and Young spent $165,145 through Oct. 31, five days before the election.

A different set of figures, supplied by Common Cause, the Washington-based citizens lobby, showed that Young spent $185,287 and Mikva put out $204,213 through Oct. 14.

In the 15th District, where the field was open following the decision by Rep. Leslie C. Arends to retire, Democrat Tim Hall tallied about 53 per cent of the vote to beat Clifford Carlson, who spent more on his campaign.

Through Oct. 31 Carlson had spent $76,937, although a good chunk of that was used in a hard-fought primary race. As of Thursday, Hall's Oct. 31 report had not been received by spent a reported $224,344 in his successful campaign against Val Oshel, who spent only $46,833.

And in the west suburban 6th District, Henry Hyde, the Republican victor, spent more than twice as much as his Democratic opponent Edward V. Hanrahan—$115,622 to $51,166.

Rep. Robert McClory, the Republican incumbent who was reelected in the 13th District, was slightly outspent by his Democratic opponent, Stanley W. Beetham, $27,785 to $26,084.

In the south suburban 3rd District, Democrat Martin A. Russo spent twice as much as his opponent in unseating Robert P. Hanrahan.

One of the largest gaps in spending in a race involving an incumbent occurred in the 20th District in central Illinois. Republican Paul Findley reported expenditures of $96,467 compared with $20,015 for his unsuccessful opponent, Peter Mack.

Even incumbents in the safest districts managed to spend money in a campaign.

Rep. Ralph Metcalfe, who has a solid grip on Chicago's heavily Democratic South Side, reported expenditures of $40,855 en route to tallying 94 per cent of the vote. His closest opponent, Republican Oscar H. Haynes, reported expenditures of $25.

the Secretary of State, but his Oct. 14 report showed expenditures of $16,546.

In the other non-incumbent races, Democrat Paul Simon

Jockeying starts among Demos for post of speaker of House

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) —

Savoring their biggest election victory in four decades, Illinois House Democrats now look to another election — this January's contest for House speaker.

Minority Leader Clyde Choate of Anna and Gerald Shea, chief spokesman for Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, are expected to figure heavily in the discussions of that race in the next two months.

Although results in one District were still being counted, Democrats appeared to have taken a 102-75 control of the House and 34-25 control of the Senate in the General Assembly that meets the first time in January.

It takes 89 votes in the House and 30 in the Senate to pass a bill, and 107 in the House and 36 in the Senate to override most vetoes.

In the current General Assembly, the Republicans have one-vote margins of control in the 59-member Senate and the 177-seat House, and, thus, hold all committee chairmanships.

Choate, a Southern Illinois protégé of the late Secretary of State Paul Powell, won his 15th term in the House in Tuesday's elections.

He immediately issued an 11-page compilation of suggestions for reform of the House rules, an issue that temporarily snarled his drive for the minority leader post in 1973.

It is expected he will attempt to reach an agreement with Daley before the speakership race to avoid a bitter floor fight for the speakership, the top post in the House and possible the most powerful in the legislature.

However, The Chicago Tribune reported in today's editions that a top source in Gov. Daniel Walker's office said Walker is opposed to Choate's elevation and a bloody floor fight will occur if Daley attempts to pick him as speaker.

The Tribune's unidentified source was quoted saying: "Choate has been negotiating for two days on the telephone with (Mayor) Daley implying that he (Walker) can live with him as speaker. That's not true. If Daley goes for Choate, it'll produce the bloodiest floor fight in Illinois history."

Choate announced his retirement from the House last December, only to change his mind 10 days later.

Another Daley man, Michael Madigan, said he has also been asked by some members to run for speaker, but said he has not decided if he will.

Other names mentioned include that of Paul Stone of Sullivan in central Illinois and William Redmond of suburban Bensenville.

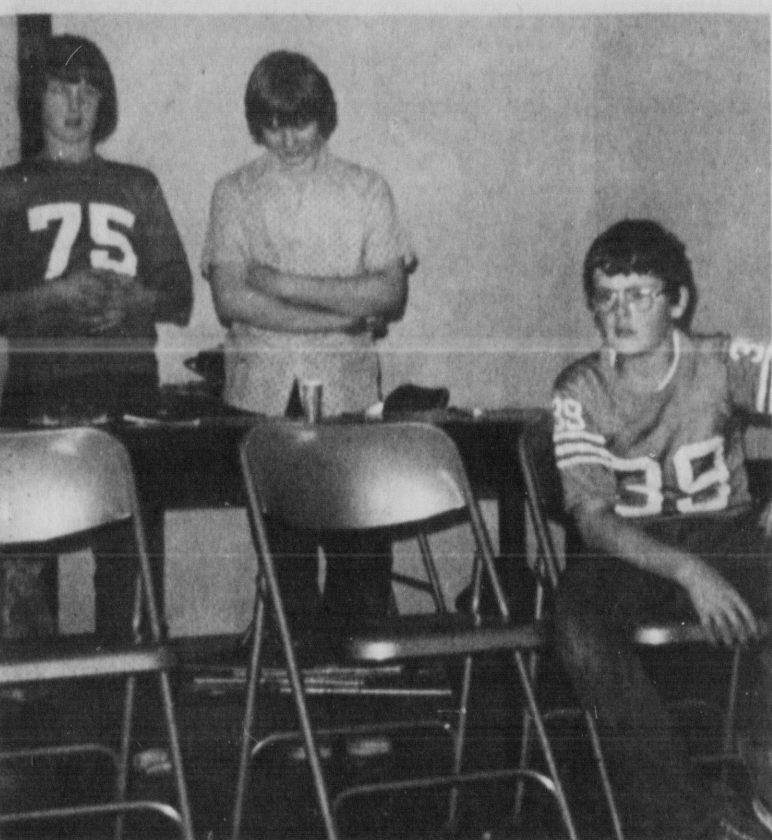

Gov. Daniel Walker, who campaigned personally for many of the legislative candidates and pumped $140,000 from his Illinois Democratic Fund into some of the campaigns, also will be party to the behind-the-scenes negotiations for the speakership. While Democrats returned exultant to Springfield for a fall session to consider the governor's vetoes, Republicans were groping for a leader.

Several Republicans were anxious to step into the void created by the Blair loss. Among them were John Hirschfeld of Champaign, Robert Juckett of Park Ridge and Ron Hoffman of suburban Westchester, none of whom attempted to conceal their ambition for a leadership post.

Majority Leader William Walsh is among those most frequently mentioned for the minority leadership, and Phillip Collins of Calumet City and Brian Duff of Wilmette also are interested in leadership jobs.

The Senate presidency is expected to pass smoothly to Minority Leader Cecil Partridge of Chicago, with the current Senate President, William Harris, R-Pontiac, leading the minority.

Area temperature and rainfall below normal

DeKALB—October's weather was more of the same with its below normal temperatures and below normal precipitation following the pattern set in September, according to Northern Illinois University climatologist Jack Villmow.

Temperatures averaged 51.5 degrees in October, 1.5 degrees below the 1941-70 normal of 53 degrees. Precipitation totaled 2.39 inches, 0.41 inches less than the 2.8 inches normal.

Although nine days reached into the 70s, the month's high of 76 degrees on Oct. 4 was a far cry from the hottest October day since records have been compiled for the area—93 degrees on Oct. 1, 1897. Coldest temperature was 25 degrees on Oct. 2, one of six mornings when temperatures fell below freezing and a new low for that date. Record low is 7 degrees recorded on Oct. 30, 1925.

Past Octobers have had a wide range in average temperature—warmest was 1963 with 62.3 degrees, coldest was 1917 with 42.8 degrees.

Precipitation for the year now totals 32.5 inches compared with a normal Jan. 1 to Nov. 1 total of 30.9 inches, largely due to an excessively wet spring.

Hearing Dec. 5 to discuss road closings

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Department of Transportation will hold a public hearing Dec. 5 to discuss the closing of 12 township roads in Lee County in connection with the construction of U.S. Supplemental Freeway.

The hearing will be held at 7 p.m. Dec. 5 in the Steward Elementary School gymnasium in Steward. All interested persons are welcome to attend.

Also included as a portion of the public hearing will be a discussion of shifting the interchange, which was previously on Elva Road, to Perry Road. The change is a result of further analysis of the traffic patterns and anticipated growth in Steward and the surrounding area.

Personnel from the department will conduct the public hearing and will be available to answer any questions and to explain the Department's Relocation Assistance Program to anyone that may be adversely affected by the construction.

Maps sketches and other pertinent data are available for public inspection at the Dixon District Office, 819 Depot Ave., Dixon.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all my friends and relatives for the flowers and many cards I received while in the Rockford Memorial Hospital. Also I want to give special thanks to Rev. Robt. Schumm for his calls and prayers and to all others who prayed for me. I am very grateful to you all.

Mrs. Arthur Blum

The members of the board of directors of the Lee County Chapter, National Foundation for Birth Defects, express their thanks to the donors of the $2144 received by mail since September 1 toward the March of Dimes 1975 campaign goal of $10,000.

Orr listens and reacts

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer

When Boston Bruins' Coach Don Cherry speaks, Bobby Orr listens.

"He did just like I told him to," Cherry said. "I told him to put it in the net."

Orr scored three goals and assisted on three others as the Bruins exploded past the expansion Washington Capitals 10-4 Thursday night.

In other National Hockey League games, Philadelphia blanked Minnesota 2-0, Los Angeles stopped Pittsburgh 5-3 and Vancouver defeated Kansas City 6-4.

Indianapolis downed San Diego 3-0 in the only World Hockey Association game.

"When the score is close he turns it on," Cherry said facetiously of Orr. "You'll notice the score was 2-1 when he did what he did."

Capitals' Coach Jim Anderson wasn't laughing.

"The team was just in awe of him," he said. "Playing the Bruins, playing in Boston Garden, a kid like Mike Marson watches those guys pass the puck around and he's just in awe."

Anderson said the NHL "expanded too fast. It's going to take three to four years for these kids to do anything."

Washington goalie Ron Low and Michel Belhumeur weathered the 41-shot Boston attack as Orr increased his league-leading scoring total to 28 points.

Phil Esposito, runner-up to Orr in the scoring race, had a goal and three assists.

Two streaks continued in Philadelphia's victory over the Minnesota North Stars. The Flyers have now won six in a row and Minnesota hasn't won a game in its last seven outings, losing five and tying two.

It was the North Stars' eighth road game in their last nine outings.

Rick MacLeish and Bill Barber scored for Philadelphia while Flyers' goalie Bernie Parent shut out the North Stars.

Mississippi State gets Sun bid

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

The Mississippi State Bulldogs are finally getting a place in the Sun.

"It's a dream come true," said quarterback Rocky Felker Thursday after learning that his football team had been invited to play in the Sun Bowl. "When we heard about it, everyone just went crazy."

The bowl appearance will be the first in 11 years for the Bulldogs, who have been Southeastern Conference pussycats until this year.

Mississippi State, a high-scoring team this season behind a virulent Veer offense, will probably meet North Carolina in the post-season game Dec. 28 at El Paso, Tex.

The college football bowl picture was put into sharper focus with these other developments Thursday.

Vanderbilt was selected to play in the Peach Bowl on Dec. 28 in Atlanta. The Commodores will probably face Texas Tech if the Red Raiders can beat Texas Christian this Saturday.

North Carolina State announced that it had accepted a bid to go to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston on Dec. 23. The Wolfpack will play the University of Houston Cougars.

Money squabble almost stopped Foreman-Ali fight

night-long squabble over extra money — by some accounts a half-million dollars to be placed in an empty valise — almost resulted in George Foreman walking out of his world heavyweight title fight against Muhammad Ali just 36 hours before the bell.

Foreman didn't get the money, but he climbed into the ring at 4 a.m. Oct. 30, by his own admission, a confused and unhappy man.

"It was very trying," he said. "I had to sit up all night arguing and I admit it was a strain. You're supposed to take it all in stride if you're a champion, so I don't want this to sound like a cop-out."

"Under other circumstances," Foreman said, "the fight wouldn't have been."

The ex-champion's title disappeared when he wearied, his style reverted to that of a flailing amateur, and he was knocked out in the eighth round.

At the same time, and partly in relation to the Foreman money dispute, the government of Zaire, which spent millions trying to erase its old image as the chaotic Congo, went back to methods that its publicists said were long gone.

Foreign nationals' passports were taken away. British promoter John Daly was refused the right to leave the country. A photographer's camera was confiscated and her film exposed. Foreman was delayed at the airport and questioned by security officials. The boxer himself guided the trembling wife of one of the promoters onto a departing plane.

The story of the money and the government's fit of demagoguery comes from four sources, including Daly, who told parallel accounts. Foreman's version differs at some points. Publication was withheld until all the principals left Zaire.

"We played for time," said Daly, "because we thought Foreman's demand was absolutely unreasonable."

According to the sources, the sequence of events began in London, eight days before the fight. Leroy Jackson, a black businessman who has dropped in and out of Foreman's favor as a financial manager, called on Derek Dawson, managing director of Equity Enterprises, the $60-million-a-year parent firm of Hemdale Leisure Corp., one of the fight's three promoters.

The sources said these events followed:

Jackson told Dawson that Foreman was desperately unhappy and so strapped for money and dissatisfied with his financial arrangements that he could not guarantee the fight would take place. Because of tax payments on purses from other fights, taxes on the current $5 million, litigation in various courts and managers' fees, Foreman was described as being unlikely to clear more than $500,000 from the Ali bout.

Daly, the 37-year-old Hemdale director, then flew to Zaire with Jackson who emphasized, the sources said, that Foreman was in such a negative mental state that he felt close to refusing to defend his title.

Sport notes

Volleyball league

The Dixon Park District is sponsoring a volleyball league to be held on Wednesday nights. Players and teams are urged to sign up by calling 284-2965. The league will start after two weeks of team practice. Cost is $2 per individual or $20 for a team.

25-and-Over basketball

Basketball players are still needed for the Park District 25-and-Over League to begin action. Register before Nov. 21 by calling 284-2965. There will be a 10-man roster and a five-team maximum. Cost is $2 per player or $20 for a team.

Meely is a valuable reserve

By The Associated Press

Cliff Meely thinks he is good enough to be in the Houston Rockets' starting lineup. Maybe so, but he may just be too valuable as a reserve.

Meely, a 6-foot-8 forward who earlier in the day complained of being demoted to the bench and asked to be traded, entered the game in the second quarter with his team trailing 40-28 and reeled off 11 points before halftime to spark the Houston Rockets to a 103-93 National Basketball Association victory over the stumbling Milwaukee Bucks Thursday night.

Milwaukee, which battled Boston to seven games in the finals of last year's NBA playoffs, has just one victory in its first 10 outings, the worst record in the league except for the expansion New Orleans Jazz, 0-10. The Bucks have been playing without two of last year's starters, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, sidelined with a broken hand, and guard Oscar Robertson, who has retired.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Atlanta Hawks edged the Phoenix Suns 109-108 and the Seattle

SuperSonics beat the Golden State Warriors 104-93.

In the only game of the night in the American Basketball Association, the Utah Stars defeated the Virginia Squires 107-90.

Houston trailed 31-18 after the first period, but outscored the Bucks 35-15 in the second quarter to take a 56-43 halftime lead. During the second quarter surge ignited by Meely, the Rockets outscored Milwaukee 14-0 over a 3 1/2-minute span to take the lead they never lost.

Forward Bob Dandridge led Milwaukee with 23 points and guard George Thompson added 22. Rudy Tomjanovich topped Houston with 22 and Meely finished with 14.

The Hawks blew a 24-point third-quarter lead but managed to nip the Suns on a free throw by Dean Meminger with 12 seconds to go and a basket by rookie Mike Sojourner with eight seconds remaining.

The Hawks led 71-47 early in the third period, but Phoenix rallied behind guard Charlie Scott, Scott, who led all scorers with 31 points, scored 11 in a row late in the fourth quarter to help Phoenix take a 106-102 lead, but Lou Hudson sank a pair of jump shots to draw Atlanta even with 1:08 left.

Meminger was fouled with 12 seconds to go. He sank the first free throw and missed the second, but Sojourner picked up the loose ball and laid it up for a 109-106 lead, enough to withstand Keith Erickson's two free throws at the buzzer.

John Brown, the forward from Missouri, led Atlanta with 24 points, including 18

Memphis wraps up Central Division

MEMPHIS (AP) — The Memphis Southern team wrapped up the Central Division championship of the World Football League, but they're not ready to take it according to running back J.J. Jennings.

Jennings says the Southern, a 49-24 winner over the Chicago Fire in a nationally televised game Thursday night, have a schedule to meet and it includes a victory next week over the Charlotte Hornets.

"We're on schedule," he said in the dressing room after he and John Harvey scored two touchdowns each in helping hand the Fire its 10th straight loss, dropping Chicago's record to 7-12.

"We want to win next week," Jennings said. "We're the best team in the league."

The loss dimmed Chicago's chances of making the WFL playoffs, but Fire owner Tom Orger has threatened to keep his team away from the post-season action anyway and says Chicago won't even show up for its last regular season game against Philadelphia.

Spavital, asked if Chicago would play Philadelphia, answered, "Of course, I haven't been told any different."

While Jennings, a rookie who was the first WFL rusher to gain more than 1,000 yards, scored on runs of two and four yards and Harvey scored from three and 30 yards out, they had to share honors with the Southern quarterbacks.

John Huarte started at quarterback and finished with six completions on 10 attempts for 93 yards. Danny White took over in the third quarter and hit seven of nine for 119 yards, including a 20-yard touchdown pass to Ed Marshall.

Quarterback problems continued to plague Chicago. Bubba Wyche joined Virgil Carter on the injury list when he suffered a possible sprain or fracture of his foot in the first quarter. But his successor, Bill Cappelman, hit 14 of 26 passes for 197 yards, including scoring passes of 54 yards to Lonnie Crittenden and 29 yards to Bob Wyatt.

Chicago also scored on Cyril Pinder's 59-yard dash.

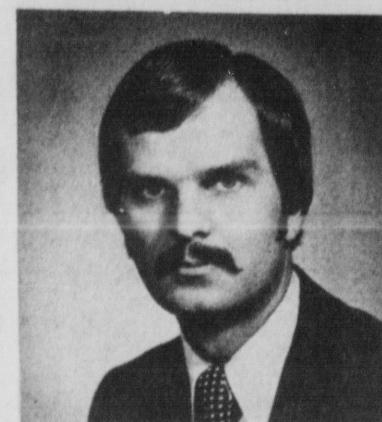

In the only other WFL game Thursday night, the Florida Blazers walloped the Portland Storm 23-0 as Tommy Reamon scored three touchdowns.

WISH TO THANK THE VOTERS OF LEE COUNTY FOR THEIR INTEREST IN THE NOVEMBER ELECTIONS

If you voted for me I will work hard to justify your confidence in me.

If you voted against me I will work hard to convince you that I am capable of doing a competent job.

Either way, as Regional Superintendent for Lee County Schools I pledge to you that you shall get a 100 per cent return in services and programs on the tax dollars invested in my office.

THANKS AGAIN, "MIKE" HECKMAN

DODGE.

BUILT FOR THE MAN WHO'D RATHER DRIVE A TRUCK THAN A CAR.

1975 DODGE PICKUPS—TOUGH, DEPENDABLE, GOOD-LOOKING.

Dodge understands you. A pickup is what you'd like to drive all the time. That's why we've styled our '75 Dodge especially for those men who'd rather drive a truck than a car. Hard-working? In standard models, on both long and short wheelbases, with both six-cylinder and V8 engines, the Dodge D100 can carry a larger payload than comparable Ford and Chevy pickups. Dependable? Dodge offers you sure starts with proven solid-state Electronic Ignition standard on all models and engines. Good-looking? Judge for yourself. Compare ours to theirs. Then pick Dodge. It was designed for you, the man who'd rather drive a truck than a car.

DODGE TRADESMAN VAN—OUR VAN FOR ALL REASONS.

Tradesman is, indeed, our van for all seasons and reasons. Tradesman can be a handy work partner, your wife's best friend, or a vacation-perfect home-on-the-road. Tradesman's notable standard features include front disc brakes, proven solid-state Electronic Ignition (on all engines), and a larger standard fuel tank than those on either Ford or Chevy vans. Tradesman's options include automatic transmission, power steering, air conditioning, a new single rear door, and an auxiliary rear compartment heater. Dodge vans, tough enough for any tradesman, but you don't have to be a tradesman to afford or appreciate one.

Care for Your Car

FALL-WINTER 1974

FRIDAY, NOV. 8, 1974

Car care is especially important this winter.

- To help you enjoy a winter of trouble-free driving.
- Fast, easy starts.
- Reduced exhaust emissions.
- Maximum gasoline economy.

Trouble starting?

Battery replacement may not be answer

Servicing or replacing the car battery may not be the answer to a car's winter starting woes.

That's what a high percentage of motorists learned when they experienced starting failure and sought to correct it solely through attention to the battery.

According to a hard-starting survey conducted last winter, repeated failure was experienced by 38.9 per cent of car owners who had their batteries charged after initial "can't starts."

Of those motorists installing a new battery after not starting, 25.9 per cent had at least one other failure.

When car owners treated starting woes with engine tune-up, they had better success in forestalling future problems, the survey showed. Rate of repeat can't starts was 14.6 per cent after a tune-up. Installation of new spark plugs alone was a better answer to starting trouble than battery service since 18.7 per cent had additional problems with new plugs.

The survey also revealed hard starting continues to be the leading problem confronting motorists. In the U.S., 29 per cent of owners reported at least one failure last winter. In Canada, 30 per cent had trouble.

Cold weather was not solely to blame for starting trouble. Warm weather regions in the U.S. were only slightly below the national average in reported "can't starts."

In Pacific Coast states, 27 per cent of car owners surveyed had at least one failure while the South Atlantic states had a 28 per cent "can't start" rate.

These areas also had the lowest incidence of tune-up purchases in the U.S.

Cold weather starting tips

Like people, car engines are reluctant to get going on cold mornings. It's a small wonder when near-zero temperatures thicken various lubricating oils and greases which makes it tougher for parts of the engine to move.

Also, the colder the temperature, the less efficient the battery becomes. At zero degrees, for instance, the battery is only about half as efficient as on a normal summer morning.

Herewith is a list of tips. These will keep voltage demands on your car's battery down during the vulnerable period when the battery loses much of its punch.

1. Transmission: To lessen the load on the starter, release manual shift transmissions by depressing the clutch pedal; place automatic transmissions in "neutral" before attempting to start the engine.

2. Electrical Accessories: Shut off lights, windshield wipers, defrosters, heater, radio, etc., before attempting to start the engine. This will assure maximum voltage available for both the starter motor and the ignition system.

3. Choking: While complete setting of hand choke is obvious, some drivers don't realize that most automatic chokes must be set "on" by depressing the accelerator before starting. (Many cold weather starting failures are due entirely to this oversight.)

4. Pumping the Accelerator: An additional one or two pumps on the accelerator pedal will dump raw gasoline into the intake manifold and help get enough vaporized fuel into the cylinders during very cold weather.

5. Throttle Setting: When the starter is energized, the accelerator should be about half way down to get enough air rushing through the manifold to pick up the fuel and carry it into the cylinders.

6. Starter Motor: Energize the starter at relatively short intervals. Avoid grinding away or you may overheat the starter motor and cause excessive drain on the battery.

7. Shut-off: Place transmission in "neutral" and run engine at fast idle. When switch is off, depress accelerator to "flood" the engine. This will insure a supply of gasoline in the cylinders for the next start.

A complete check of the ignition system and spark plugs before the first cold snap hits is advised. A weak ignition coil, defective distributor points or worn spark plugs can kick starting voltage requirements way up. And, of course, if battery voltage is too low to meet these increased demands, the engine won't start.

Gas-saving efforts vital for U.S. motorists as winter approaches

Like the dieter who has just shed 20 pounds and rewards himself with a double banana split, the motorist seems to be celebrating the abatement of the severe gasoline shortage with a new binge of wastefulness. At least this is the contention of the U.S. Federal Energy Agency which is detecting signs of "business as usual" when it comes to use of fuel.

Even though the supply of gasoline at the fuel pump is more plentiful now than earlier this year, serious problems remain. Gasoline prices are in some cases double what they were before the crisis. Some say they are going to rise even higher.

There is still only a given amount of oil left in the earth and that supply dwindles everyday. Noted author Barbara Ward is among those who believe that the supply of crude oil will be exhausted in a century or two.

On the shorter term basis, there is still a lack of political stability in many parts of the oil-producing world and black gold remains a potent bargaining weapon.

Thus common sense dictates that the motorist continue the gasoline-saving efforts he made during the depths of the shortage. He should continue to observe those prudent practices of careful driving.

He should adhere to speed limits that are not only saving gasoline but human life as well.

He should continue to maintain his car's engine and other components related to good gas economy.

Yet, here's what seems to be happening. Police report that cars are being driven faster than the 55 mile per hour speed limit. Expressway traffic jams are reaching their pre-shortage density as public transportation and car pools are being abandoned.

REMEMBER LAST WINTER?— During the depths of the gasoline shortage, motorists often lined up for blocks to get the precious fuel. While fuel may be more plentiful today, prices are sometimes almost double what they were before the energy crisis. So the prudent motorist will continue to drive sensibly and keep his engine in tune as well as maintaining other critical components.

With the hardest driving days of all coming upon us this fall and winter, it is hoped that good car maintenance remains a habit with the motorist.

Fall and winter driving conditions often create slow and stop-and-go-traffic patterns. This situation is wasteful of expensive fuel and only a car with a well-tuned engine can get efficient gas consumption.

A tuned engine is also the best insurance against what AAA indicates is the Number One problem facing motorists. That is starting trouble which affects about 50,000,000 car owners, primarily striking in the winter time.

So with gasoline prices at record-high levels, the prices of new cars at all-time highs and costs in general on an upward cycle, money spent on car maintenance is a sound investment. In addition to keeping your car running longer and better on the least possible fuel, maintenance gives you the extra benefits of safety, good performance and trouble-free operation all year around.

Start by making sure this fall and winter find you in a well-functioning car. Ask your favorite auto serviceman to check your car from bumper to bumper and roof to tire treads.

Wipers are vital

As with so many other vital components on your car, your windshield wipers are most likely to fail just when you need them the most — during the next rainstorm.

During the winter, windshield wipers have to fight freezing snow, ice, slush and road salt.

In the summer, heat, smog, and even your service station attendant's windshield washer spray work together to reduce the efficiency of your wiper system. It's no wonder, after sitting quietly on your windshield deteriorating day-in and day-out, that they often fail to do their job.

The best time to check your windshield wiper system is during a rainstorm. Or you can check it the next time you go through a car wash. You can also perform a good check while someone sprays your windshield with a garden hose. However you choose to check your wipers, you should check them on both the fast and slow speeds.

If any trouble symptoms are present, you should replace as much of your wiper system as is necessary to eliminate the problem. In many cases, all that is needed is new squeegees (the rubber part that contacts the windshield).

Check for the following signs of malfunctioning:

1. STREAKING — arcs of unwiped moisture within wiping area.
2. HAZING — a thin, hard-to-see-through film covering most or all of the wiping area even after the blade has just wiped.
3. CHATTERING — a "stuttering" motion of the blade accompanied by a "chattering" noise as the blade sweeps across the windshield, with some areas left unwiped.

4. SCALLOPING — a ragged outer edge in the wiping pattern.

Power steering not really complicated

If your car is equipped with power steering, you may think that this system is very complicated and must be serviced by highly skilled technicians using costly special tools.

This is not the case.

Granted, a power steering system is considerably more complex than a non-power system. But most power steering maintenance can be accomplished by the motorist or his service station operator. Special tools are not usually required.

At the heart of your car's power steering system is the power steering pump. This hydraulic pump merely supplies the pressure to turn your car's wheels when you turn the steering wheel. This pump rarely breaks down as long as you make sure its supply of power steering fluid does not get too low. Periodic checking of the fluid level is all that is necessary for regular maintenance of the power steering pump.

One other item that should be checked periodically is the belt that connects the pump to the engine. If this belt should break, your entire power steering system will cease to function, immediately. This could be extremely dangerous if you are travelling at high speed on the freeway.

While you are checking the fluid level and the drive belts check the hoses that connect the pump to the other components in the system. Hose connections should be tight and leak-free.

The Ford Store

When we first started selling cars, our goal was to have the best Ford dealership in this part of the country. When folks thought about buying a car or truck, they referred to our place as "The Ford Store." People knew that our service door wouldn't close after the sale, and they kept coming back when it was time to trade.

We worked long hours, six days a week, to develop a highly-skilled, factory-trained service department with all the latest equipment; the finest and most complete parts inventory around; friendly showroom personnel who knew their product; a paint and body shop that was second to none — all working together as a team to give the customer the kind of service he should expect. That's what it took to be the best.

We're carrying on the tradition that Henry Ford started. We believe that selling you a car is just the beginning of the deal.

Won't you come in and let us show you what a car dealer used to be?

One of ten cars fails pollution test

Despite the setting of lenient standards, nearly 10 per cent of all vehicles have failed New Jersey's compulsory emissions inspection tests since they began last February. Yet correcting conditions that cause high emissions from the gross polluters will remove 17,000 tons of carbon monoxide and 10,000 tons of hydrocarbons yearly from the air in the Garden State.

Early last February a batch of cars began to pass through the state's motor vehicle inspection stations. Every car, in for its annual safety checkup, has been tested for air pollution—and failed inspection if it didn't conform to New Jersey's standards.

Deputy Director Robert W. McMinn of the State's Division of Motor Vehicles (DMV) said New Jersey's 38 motor vehicle inspection stations are geared for smooth implementation of mandatory exhaust emission testing.

He said, "Our examiners have been testing cars on an advisory basis for the last year and a half. They are anxious to make sure that this test is fairly administered so that this vital program will be one the public can live with."

"The emission analyzers have demonstrated excellent reliability over this period and are continually calibrated to prevent erroneous readings."

"In addition, the machines are 'fail safe.' This means that any equipment malfunction results in either no test or a passing grade for the vehicle," McMinn explained. "If a car has failed only the pollution, it is not necessary to go through the inspection lane again. Merely drive to the exit end of the station for reinspection."

While only one of 10 cars has failed, the State Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), which sets the standards, estimates a 24 per cent reduction in carbon monoxide in heavily congested downtown business districts of the state's many towns and cities, resulting from the mandatory inspection.

Statewide, the program is calculated to remove 17,000 tons (five per cent) per year of carbon monoxide and 10,000 tons (three per cent) of hydrocarbons from the atmosphere. Most of the reduction will come from improved combustion resulting from simple tune-ups needed to pass inspection.

Unlike the programs proposed by other states and the federal government, New Jersey's does not require the addition of any control devices.

It is estimated that an engine tune-up will achieve a seven to eight per cent fuel saving. In the first year of the system's operation, this would add up to more than 15 million gallons saved. The total out-of-pocket cost to the motoring public is expected to be about four million dollars, the savings in gasoline also being computed in this figure.

The state regulation also requires new car dealers to see to it that new cars conform to the state's emission standards before making delivery to customers.

In addition, the code restates tion of the code is enforceable by the state and local police. New Jersey, with the highest density of both population and automobiles of any state, has 3½ million registered vehicles.

Being properly equipped and keeping one's wits about one is the best advice for a snow-bound motorist.

What to do if snowbound

Every winter there is invariably a news flash concerning a heavy storm that has stranded thousands of motorists along some snow-clobbered road. Most car owners involved in such a nightmare are unprepared for such a harrowing experience.

Here is a list of "Do's" and "Don'ts" to assure survival in a snowbound car.

Have your car completely winterized, with special attention to ignition, antifreeze, battery and cables, radiator hoses and cap, fan and power belts, snow tires, including spare tire, and all lubricants.

Carry a first aid kit, traction mat, blanket, scraper, sand, and a shovel. In emergencies you may use your hub caps as shovels.

Warm clothing should include heavy socks, mitts, a good pair of snow boots, snowmobile suit and heavy duty sleeping bag.

It's also a good idea to carry a tool kit, spare fuses, axe, nylon tow rope or chain, a container for gasoline and a length of rubber tubing to siphon off gasoline for use as fuel. Hub caps may also be used as containers.

Your kit should also contain matches dipped in wax and sealed in a water-tight container, two or three chocolate bars, and candles to help warm the inside of the car should you run out of gasoline.

Keep your "survival kit" in a water repellent box or canvas bag.

Your actions during the first few hours of being stranded are vitally important.

1. Stay in the car until you run out of gasoline (siphon some into a container before you do.) Beware of carbon monoxide. Make sure the tailpipe is clear of snow. Idle the car just long enough to take the chill off.

2. When you run out of fuel and candles, GET OUT. Frost build-up can seal the car and cause suffocation.

3. Light a fire by dousing wood with the gasoline you've siphoned off. If wood is not available, use the car seats, rugs, spare tire and, if necessary, the tires on the wheels. (Be sure to let the air out of tire before igniting.)

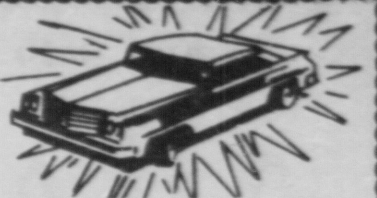

4. Build a shelter using branches or blankets. If not available, use the car as a wind break.

5. Prepare a water supply by melting snow or ice. Eating ice or snow can cause dehydration. You can live for days without food but water is essential.

Thermostat is key to a not-so-hot heater

If you have been putting up with a not-so-hot heater in your car, it may be an indication of damage to more than your disposition.

Your car's heater derives its heat from the water that circulates through the cooling system. When that water is too cool to warm your feet, it probably means your engine is cold, too!

The usual cause of over-cooling is an incorrect or defective thermostat. The net effect will be felt in your pocket-book as well as in the car on cold days.

Most immediately, you will find your gasoline bills rising over and above the normal cold weather increase when your choke is working overtime. The longer your choke is on, the greater your gas consumption.

If the engine is running even colder than you expect it to in the winter, the over-worked choke really inflates your gasoline bills. And all because of a defective thermostat.

Then there is oil dilution, leading to sludge formation. Sound ominous? It is to an engine.

In a cold engine, fuel doesn't vaporize well, tends to seep in liquid form down into the engine oil, instead of burning in the cylinder. This, plus water formed by condensation in the cold engine, reduces the lubricating qualities of the oil.

In freezing weather conditions, lubrication can be a particularly critical factor. An engine is designed to run quite hot, and all metal parts are designed with this heat in mind.

As we all remember from junior high school science class, metal expands with heat and contracts with cold. So a cold engine has a lot of slightly loose parts that need the best lubrication possible to prevent rapid wear.

The final horror of the cold engine is the fouling of spark plugs, which may ensue. Plugs fire poorly, foul rapidly and compound the problem.

Fouled plugs, rapid wear of engine parts and inefficient engine operation result in a condition that has become more critical than cold feet or tight budgets.

Fun with Signs

International-type road signs, indications that give their messages in pictures not words, are becoming more popular on this continent. It doesn't take much of a humorous flight of fancy to read things into these signs that may not have been their original intent.

For instance, these signs might be saying:

- | | |
|-----------------------------|------------------------------------|
| A. Get a Horse! | E. Dry Martinis Ahead |
| B. Unorthodox Church Ahead | F. No Red Cars Allowed |
| C. Ban Half the Bombs | G. The Natives Aren't Friendly |
| D. Gas Station Ahead, Mommy | H. High Winds, Watch Your Umbrella |
| I. Car Wash Ahead | |

For what they actually mean, see below:

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| A. Horses Ahead | E. Steep Grade |
| B. Traffic Entering from Both Sides | F. Cattle Crossing Ahead |
| C. Traffic Entering from Left | G. Two-Way Traffic |
| D. School Zone | H. Road Work Ahead |
| | I. Caution, Road Ends Near Water |

Why change spark plugs?

A spark plug may look good to the casual observer after 15,000, 20,000 or even 30,000 miles. So why change plugs after 10,000 miles of use in your family car?

There's a good reason according to experts. The 10,000-mile change recommendation is not actually based on the fact that spark plugs are "worn out" in the strictest sense after 10,000 miles of service.

This figure—selected after extensive spark plug life tests—merely represents a safety factor beyond which plugs may misfire under the sudden demands of peak acceleration or extremely heavy load.

It also represents the point at which gas economy begins to drop. In addition, the car is harder to start, power is lost in passing.

A spark plug is considered worn out when it reaches the point where it is likely to misfire—regardless of its appearance. And, contrary to popular opinion, misfiring doesn't necessarily mean the plug didn't create a spark. It means simply that the plug failed to ignite the gasoline properly—whether a spark was produced or not!

A new spark plug with the correct gap setting needs about 5,000 volts to fire. However, as the plug remains in service, constant heat and chemical attack plus electrical erosion cause the gap to become wider, thus increasing the amount of voltage to fire the plug.

Spark plug gap growth occurs at a rate of about .001 inch for each 1,000 miles of driving. Consequently, a set of plugs that has been in service for 10,000 miles generally will have gaps that are about .010 inch wider than the original settings and higher voltage is needed to make them spark.

And, this is only for normal driving. Operating the engine at very high speed can decrease the amount of coil voltage available to fire the spark plugs by 30 to 40 per cent! Accelerating to pass on a highway may practically double the voltage

CAR SERVICE MANUAL: A "HOW TO" TREASURE FOR CAR OWNERS

Professional mechanics know a lot of tricks to keep your car in shape. With a little effort, the average car owner can learn enough of them to avoid minor repair bills and help prevent major mechanical failures.

A new Car Service Manual offered by The Gates Rubber Company is one example of getting this knowledge into the hands of the motorist. The book is described as "the book professionals use."

Simple illustrated instructions from the Car Service Manual, offered by The Gates Rubber Company, put professional check-points in the hands of the average car owner.

This 132-page, illustrated guide covers everything from servicing air conditioning systems to replacing windshield wiper blades. The book costs $2.95 and can be ordered by mail from Gates.

Economy and safety are stressed under such headings as Brakes, Emission Control Systems, and Drive Belts. Many of the maintenance procedures require no tools at all, though the book does cover such subjects as Automatic Transmissions, Differentials and Power Steering which assume some mechanical know-how.

Imported and domestic cars, both front and rear wheel drive models, are covered. Obviously, a general guide can't hit all the details that a factory shop manual would, but factory prepared manuals often cost $15 to $20.00 or more.

The Car Service Manual offered by Gates was originally written to train service station and garage owners and attendants. It covers automotive maintenance services most frequently performed by these firms and includes a complete Safety Inspection Section.

Abundant use of illustrations permits the manual to serve as a "picture story" of the service being performed. This visual assistance aids the car owner, student or mechanic in quickly developing an understanding of the principles involved, as well as the easiest method of performing the service.

"Every car owner has the most versatile inspection equipment devised: eyesight and brain power," says the manual. "To effectively use this 'equipment,' however, the motorist must be trained to conduct a methodical inspection, and to evaluate visual evidence."

Here's how the manual covers a typical check-point:

"Flex and examine all brake hoses for cracks, blisters, deterioration. Most cars have three hoses (one at each front wheel; one at rear axle). Cars with independent rear suspension have two rear hoses. Check threaded connections for leakage or looseness. See that metal pipelines are undamaged and are firmly attached to frame or axle."

The Gates people obviously are not trying to turn every car owner into a mechanic with this book. They want to make each motorist more aware of the types of services their car requires and how most of those services are performed. This knowledge will let motorists better appreciate the service they are receiving at service stations and garages.

Even if the motorist never makes a single repair described in the book, he or she will know what they're getting when they have a mechanic do the job. The manual's safety Check-list alone could help prevent hundreds of automobile accidents each year.
